Reading Project Inspires Africa's Poorest

South Africa's townships are mostly urban residential areas that are severely underdeveloped. The residents suffer from crippling poverty and persistent crime and many are malnourished, illiterate and jobless.

This grim reality prompted IRFF-UK to step up in 2021 and support SHINE, an educational project already underway, in the dirt-poor township of Walmer in Port Elizabeth.

The SHINE Literacy Centre operates within the grounds of the Walmer Lower Primary School, located in a semi-rural community near Port Elizabeth International Airport.

It operates from two bright yellow 20-foot converted shipping containers within a fenced-off area and teaches basic English literacy to pupils from the primary school.

The Situation

In a recent IRFF UK catch-up on the project, SHINE manager and headteacher Pat Hippert passionately explained the circumstances.

"The needs here are enormous. The children are growing up in an incredible level of squalor."

Pat Hippert

South African public schools are overcrowded, lack facilities and have a shortage of trained teachers. Classes are rowdy with 50 pupils to a teacher.

Despite English being the language of commerce and business (and gateway language to the rest of the world), Xhosa, Zulu and Afrikaans are the most widely spoken languages. Thus, a major weakness of the national education curriculum is that English is under-taught.

Children aged between 6-9 (grades 1-3) have English lessons lasting only between 15 minutes to a maximum of 1 hour per day.

However, from grade 4 (age 9 and up) all subjects are taught entirely in English! In addition, national education state policy dictates that no child up to grade 3 can be failed. As a result, children start grade 4 thinking they are smart, only to fail terribly in their end-of-year exams.

"It's a nightmare and defeats the whole joy of learning. This is a huge stumbling block."

Pat Hibbert

SHINE's Role

SHINE's programme teaches grade 3 pupils to read English for meaning, so rather than just pronouncing the words they can understand them too. Additionally, the programme aligns with the state school curriculum and operates during school hours.

Teaching is usually delivered on a ratio of one teacher to two pupils.

"We do the themes they do, and then we blend our SHINE curriculum into it. So it's about reinforcing all the time. We build the curriculum together with the state school."

Pat Hibbert

Teaching is usually given on a ratio of two pupils to one teacher.

"The children get involved. They are very responsive, and for the first time they feel acknowledged. With the language, the spoken word, comes the building of self-confidence. That makes all the difference."

Pat Hibbert

The ability to speak and understand the English language opens up the children's world. Even the state schoolteachers visit the facility to ask for guidance material and library books.

Pat works with a team of 32 native English-speaking volunteers, many of whom are former teachers and librarians. They all love teaching and have a vision to open up the children's minds.

Barriers for the Children

"We cannot understand the trauma that many of these children live with. What they have to cope with at home. For many, school is safer than home."

Pat Hibbert

Many pupils see or suffer violence in their households, so the staff are watchful in case a child needs to be calmly reassured that school is a safe place.

"The children are hungry when they come to school. Many have a little sugar water for breakfast and for dinner, and they rely on school lunch. You can't teach a hungry stomach, you just cannot."

Pat Hibbert

Pat and her crew have water, fruit, instant soup, tea and biscuits at the ready for the children.

Failing at school ruins the children's confidence and they feel lost.

"It's so easy to get involved in street gangs. Some become vagabonds and go on to steal and loot. So, we're empowering them with a sense of achievement, of purpose, of well-being. The least amount of effort and energy we put in is so enormously appreciated by the children."

We know we can do more

SHINE is making a huge difference. With your support, we can help the school embrace even more children with the joy of education, help them feel safe in learning, and keep them off the streets.

If you are able, please click the donation button below and help more children SHINE.

IRFF UK currently sends around £300 per month to the SHINE project to help cover the costs of books and school supplies, food and clothing. Yet we want to do more and we know we can.

Whether your donation is larger or smaller, every child counts.

With thanks,

The IRFF-UK team

Yesterday was truly special as we set out to three communities to donate Reusable Pads. The experience was heartwarming beyond words. The communities of Wute, Logote, and Lawui in Akatsi, Volta Region, opened their doors to us with such warmth and gratitude.

joined by a dedicated seamstress, local leaders, and a compassionate nurse who spoke to the community in their own language, we not only distributed pads but also shared important information on their usage. We managed to distribute 430 pads amongst 3 communities, however, the need is greater than expected and many more communities still need our help! We made a heartfelt promise to return and reach out to those we couldn't help this time.

Menstruation Should Not Be An Obstacle In Life

As a charity for Africa, IRFF UK holds a strong promise to help underprivileged African girls facing challenges, especially period poverty, which makes it hard for them to go to school. We are dedicated to breaking down these barriers by making sure these girls have what they need for their periods. By doing this, we empower these young minds, giving them the chance to stay in school, learn, and break free from the cycle of poverty.

I have been happy to support projects that IRFF is running in Uganda. In particular, I have donated funds towards the building of a perimeter wall and a library at Destiny School. I really appreciate the good work IRFF has been doing over the years to help people/children in Africa.
