

UTS Master Degree Launched Dorothy Percic Hill's Teaching Career

Dorothy Percic Hill
September 9, 2015

Dorothy Percic Hill with her family

I was fortunate to already have an undergraduate teaching degree when I joined the Unification Church in 1975 in Minneapolis, Minn. After our family "settled down" in Red Hook, NY, I felt it would be good to get a decent job to be able to better support my family. I was fortunate and a public school in nearby Kingston, NY hired me. A challenge presented itself as a master's degree is required to teach in the State of New York. Luckily, I found that a UTS Master of Religious Education (MRE) degree would be recognized! The graduate degree has to be "somewhat" related to your undergraduate degree. I assume it was acceptable because the MRE is also an education degree.

The next hurdle was that I earned my UTS degree before UTS was accredited. I had to take the necessary courses to upgrade my certificate to a full degree. Happily, my school district gives teachers a three-year period to obtain a master's degree.

I was able to graduate in 2003 in the same class as Hyo Jin Moon!

I am confident that having an MRE helped me teach character education much more effectively to my middle-school students. Also, the skills learned in the MRE program helped me be a good team member and mediator, and to improve my relationships with colleagues and administrators in general.

I have received tenure in my school district and am so very grateful to have had this job. I have taught for the past 17 years and will be able to retire in 3 years with a reasonable pension.

I am eternally grateful to God and True Parents for the love and truth that they have made available to me. True Parents also gave me the opportunity to get an MRE at UTS. And now I feel so happy to be able to feel financially secure in the "sunset of my life." Thank you to UTS for giving me that blessing."

Dorothy was Blessed in marriage with Wayne Hill in 1982 and they have 3 adult children: Francesca, Joe, and Marcus.