

Veteran of Warfare?

Now the whole earth had one language and few words. And as men migrated from the east, they found a plain in the land of Shinar and settled there. And they said to one another, "Come, let us make bricks, and burn them thoroughly." And they had brick for stone, and bitumen for mortar. Then they said, "Come, let us build ourselves a city, and a tower with its top in the heavens, and let us make a name for ourselves, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth." And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the sons of men had built. And the Lord said, "Behold, they are one people, and they have all one language; and this is only the beginning of what they will do; and nothing that they propose to do will now be impossible for them. Come, let us go down, and there confuse their language, that they may not understand one another's speech." So the Lord scattered them abroad from there over the face of all the earth, and they left off building the city. Therefore its name was called Babel, because there the Lord confused the language of all the earth; and from there the Lord scattered them abroad over the face of all the earth. Genesis 11:1-9

Dear

At Sunday's service, Hyung Jin Nim invited Chief Tom Burke to give a Veterans Day Tribute. Chief Burke was healed from his tumor and heart attack several months ago after being prayed over at Sanctuary. He heard True Father speak at Madison Square Garden in 1974. At the time he asked his brother who served in Korea why Sun Myung Moon seemed very angry. His brother said that was the way Koreans made a point.

No veteran does it alone. The whole family is involved. All his older brothers enlisted to fight in WW2. The women were working in the factories. He showed photos and paintings of the farm he grew up in and the field he plowed as a 12 year old boy because all the men had joined the army. Telegrams started coming to families in the town: "we're sorry to inform you that your son was killed at ____."

One day his mother received a telegram regarding his brother who had been killed in Hamburg, Germany. The mailman stopped delivering because his only son had also been killed.

Then Hyung Jin Nim introduced Pastor George Cook from the Nehemiah Center, whom he met at an NRA show. Pastor Cook explained that, "When a pastor receives a message, it's a burden." Every minister needs to answer the question, "What is my spiritual authority to dare to teach in the name of God?" His answer: I am here because God saved me. I am here because a lot of good people prayed for me, a biker who thought his mother was going to heaven and he would never see her again because he was going to hell.

Sunday Service - November 11, 2018
Unification Sanctuary, Newfoundland PA

He gave a book to Hyung Jin Nim from his own childhood, "Out with Gun and Camera" by William Stratemeyer aka Captain Ralph Bonehill. Pastor Cook longs for a time when he could give a 14 year-old boy a rifle and could go out hunting for a summer. He sang a song about his mother's Bible, which is no longer covered with dust.

He discussed the meaning of the passage in Genesis 11 where the people of the earth decide to build a tower to glorify themselves and God makes it impossible for them to speak to one another because they now all have different languages. The word "Babel" means "confusion." Our modern world is saturated by Babel's ungodly pride. We are commanded in the book of Revelation to come out of Babylon.

And he called out with a mighty voice, "Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! It has become a dwelling place of demons, a haunt of every foul spirit, a haunt of every foul and hateful bird; For all nations have drunk the wine of her impure passion, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have grown rich with the wealth of her wantonness." Then I heard another voice from heaven saying, "Come out of her, my people, lest you take part in her sins, lest you share in her plagues; for her sins are heaped high as heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities. Rev. 18:2-5

We have been given the gift of technology to undo the curse of Babylon by sharing the one language of the Gospel. Our common language should be that of love. We are commanded to love one another, as explained by True Father Sun Myung Moon, "The spiritual world is connected with the physical world. The common factor connecting all things is true love."

Jesus' suffering did not start on the cross. Our God walked with us and chose to be with us. Not Sunday morning love where we judge each other the rest of the week.

He explained how he was fired from his first Presbyterian church pastor job because he was too enthusiastic about the Gospel.

He told a woman who had an aggressive case of brain cancer, "I don't have faith in the doctor's report of cancer or heart disease. I have faith in the Holy Spirit and in the words of Jesus." She was also told she would never have children due to chemo. He prayed over and anointed her. Now she is cured and the mother of a 2 year old son!

Afterwards Pastor Cook, Hyung Jin Nim and Yeonah Nim prayed over dozens of brothers and sisters from the U.S., Japan and Korea who came up for physical and spiritual healing.

AFTER MY BORN AGAIN EXPERIENCE

by Marcus Rennie

I have undergone an experience of being born again. Yet I still sin and knowingly bring shame through my actions.

Now I have heard of some Christians not meeting the Lord when they pass on. At the moment I find myself fearful, in my heart I feel I ought to do certain activities, such as fundraise, as well as walk in the spirit, heal the sick, share the Gospel, but I am a shy introverted person when it comes to approaching people on the street.

I fear what others think of me, if I were to ask a stranger whether I can pray for them to be healed.

All this being said, I wonder if I continue in this way, then I shall stand in front of a judge who shall say despite my knowing Christ and his Second Advent, that I shall have to be trapped in a low spiritual state because of my cowardice and retreating from manifesting Christ's behavior as my own.

INDEMNITY IS UNSEEING EVIL

Alexander Gaigg

1 Peter 5:10 (KJV) - But the God of all grace, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, establish, strengthen, settle you.

Suffering is never caused by God since God is the Cause of man and He created us out of joy. His intention was for us to return joy, always. To suffer, then, is to interact with the inherited sin of our ancestors, or collective, or personal. It is by the grace of True Father, that we can be rid of the Original Sin. We engraft onto his lineage so that we may be able to disconnect from the rest of the sins as well. These sins that we deal with is our suffering. This has been caused by Satan, the first instigator of all that was not good.

Because Christ knows of our situation better than ourselves, we are put through tests to overcome the sins we hold to ourselves and let them go. These trials are put on a time basis of days, weeks, months or years. The time period is necessary for you to overcome the sense of time. God always exists now. You were created to exist now with Him, too. Each time you are tried you are letting go of what is not connected to God. To do this, you need Christ to help you, who has overcome all tests and trials. This is how your Foundation of Faith is set.

BRITAIN IN REVOLT

Marie Koh

As Great Britain battles for independence from the European Union, which plunged the UK into endless covert wars in the Middle East after 9-11, thousands of soldiers are left destitute upon returning home from war.

The rising number of unusual deaths in the British Armed Forces and the Navy is astounding. It is believed that 49 servicemen and women have committed suicide this year.

The Ministry of Defense (MoD) reveals a staggering 400 ex-military personnel suicides between 1995 and 2014, and from 1998 - 2017, 309 suicides occurred among UK regular Armed Forces personnel, 292 among men and 17 among women.

The British Government has not been consistent in recording the deaths of ex-servicemen and women once they leave the Army so the numbers could in fact be a great deal higher.

After My Born Again Experience

I have undergone an experience of being born again. Yet I still sin and knowingly bring shame through my actions.

Now I have heard of some Christians not meeting the Lord when they pass on.

At the moment I find myself fearful, in my heart I feel I ought to do certain activities, such as fundraise, as well as walk in the spirit, heal the sick, share the Gospel, but I am a shy introverted person when it comes to approaching people on the street.

I fear what others think of me, if I were to ask a stranger whether I can pray for them to be healed.

All this being said, I wonder if I continue in this way, then I shall stand in front of a judge who shall say despite my knowing Christ and his Second Advent, that I shall have to be trapped in a low spiritual state because of my cowardice and retreating from manifesting Christ's behavior as my own.

So this comes to when I started to entertain thoughts and be haunted emotionally that the consequences of the sins of omission would be sources of accusation from ancestors of those I didn't help.

Now when I read Father's word, he talks about all sin being recorded. When I was young my parents played the film What Dreams May Come, which is a Robin Williams film where he enters hell. I remember it upsetting me to tears, I don't think I was older than 10, this may of put the fear of God and the afterlife of punishment in to me at that point.

So the thought of having all this baggage on my conscience in front of St Peter worries me greatly.

In the past I had been accused and attacked internally and spiritually by the enemy, who said I was not God's child; a lie which I believed, or at least entertained without being able to deny, but all this came from me falling years before, and being haunted ever since.

I mention this to say that I have been in hell until coming to Christ. As his blood washed my sins away and so the accusation left as well.

And yet I still live and strive, and fail to follow God's promptings. Now Faith without works is dead, St Paul said. That being said, if I continue to retreat and fail to fulfill my responsibility, I can't escape feeling this will have grave consequences for my soul.

So lastly it was in reading the Cheong Seong Gyeong, where Father mentions sin, but he says in the end he has the power to wash the sin away, which I interpret to mean on the day of judgment.

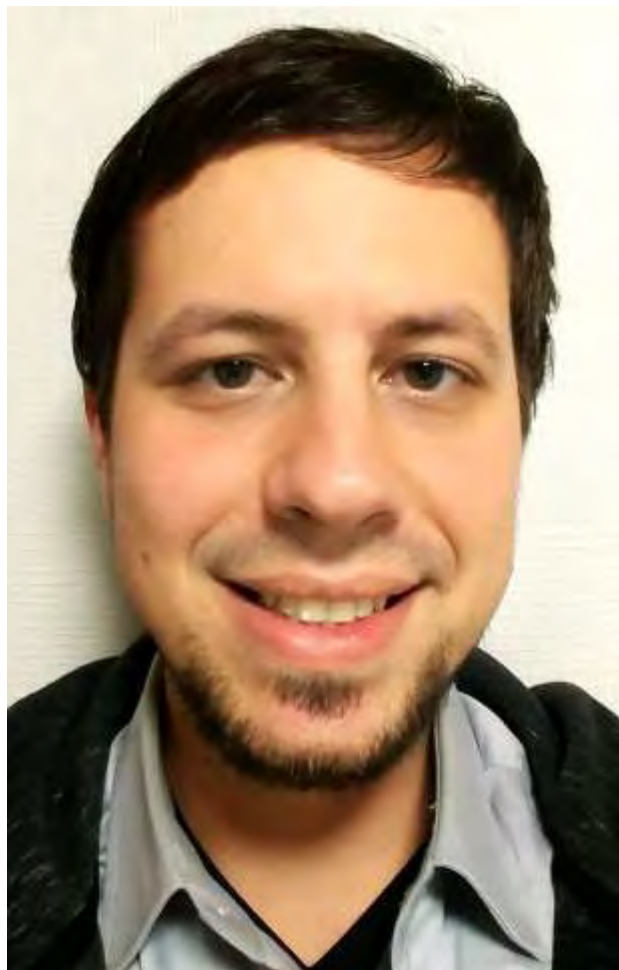

So this Brought great relief to me knowing this, because it is straightforward to accept Jesus' ability on how he works through the Holy Spirit to cleanse believers of their sins.

But I wonder where Father operates. It is almost like a military hierarchy where the simple private knows not the plans of the Field Marshall, but follows blindly.

I know this from personal experience, of having negativity and depression wiped off of my heart. But you can't rest on your laurels of what Jesus has done, and have to go on doing his will, for whom to be pleased.

You were created to exist now with Him, too. Each time you are tried you are letting go of what is not connected to God. To do this, you need Christ to help you, who has overcome all tests and trials. This is how your Foundation of Faith is set.

Your Foundation of Substance is established by removing your fallen nature. Here is where the adrenaline kicks in. You know that you are a sinner, you know that God is aching for a deeper relationship with you, and you know that no matter how much you judge your brother, you must digest it all with true love. It's an embrace for impact that swallows the whole embodiment of what is to be. You have given yourself to forgive. There is no greater act than to call upon the glory of God and Christ and let Heaven reign in from above. This is the call for the messiah to come.

And he has come! He will never go away. His presence beseeches all to come to him, so that we may know of God the Father. The Father of love and perfect presence. A stability so certain that eternity would never be more sought for in the future than now. What is there to think of days gone by when God is sitting right beside you. He looks earnestly upon you, as if to say something but only if you are willing to hear. Will you listen? He speaks to you through His Son, Christ. He speaks of your rebirth and your lineage. A lineage gifted onto you so that God can pour His love unto lasting legacies. The legacy of Christ is shared with you.

This is the backbone of the power of God. Your lineage in Christ keeps you dear to God and no evil can touch that. Don't let evil touch that! A Father would never allow his child to be harmed in any way. What harm has wrought you is of no matter to the grace of God. He shall heal, He shall give, and He shall establish you when you have stood up straight on your two feet. Christ smiles with love upon the child that seeks his comfort and seeks to comfort him. Didn't your True Father teach you of this? God is a Father to all children, but not all of them recognize Him. Be you the face of Christ to all you meet. God chose you to be of perfect love.

And a settlement is upon you. A settlement of true love. This true love speaks of what is given is received. And you shall receive because you wish to give. Give the love of God today, and see His love glide over the bitterness once held. You kept something that didn't belong to you. What is not of God is not for you. Return back to God. Your Father is near. His comfort consoles and His Heart beats in rhythm to yours. Be in sync and consider it done. The Foundation of the Messiah has been set. There is no better time to let go than now. Don't worry... your Father is there to catch you. Do you see Him?

Britain In Revolt

Hyung Jin Moon's Sanctuary Church

As Great Britain battles for independence from the European Union, which plunged the UK into endless covert wars in the Middle East after 9-11, thousands of soldiers are left destitute upon returning home from war.

The rising number of unusual deaths in the British Armed Forces and the Navy is astounding. It is believed that 49 servicemen and women have committed suicide this year.

The Ministry of Defense (MoD) reveals a staggering 400 ex-military personnel suicides between 1995 and 2014, and from 1998 - 2017, 309 suicides occurred among UK regular Armed Forces personnel, 292 among men and 17 among women.

The British Government has not been consistent in recording the deaths of ex-servicemen and women once they leave the Army so the numbers could in fact be a great deal higher.

Ex-Staff Sergeant Trevor Coult, who won the Military Cross while serving with the Royal Irish Regiment in Iraq was quoted in the Daily Star:

"When you have a service member dying by his own hand every 10 days you've got a problem. The MoD needs to conduct a detailed investigation to try and find out why troops suffering from PTSD are taking their own lives in such large numbers."

Richard Pendlebury from the Daily Mail put it this way: "In one year at the height of the Afghan War, more British soldiers took their own lives than were killed by the Taliban."

His article covers a suicide case that occurred in December 2012 in Northern Ireland where Afghan veteran Lance Corporal James Ross, from 2nd Battalion, The Rifles, took his own life. He was 30 years old.

His mother, Linda Ketcher had sought counseling herself for her son as the Army failed to help him deal with his mental condition. The family felt let down by the Army, and in the leadership they had trusted.

Linda Ketcher questioned whether it was PTSD that killed her son or a chemical reaction to anti-malarial drugs administered to the troops before the Afghan mobilization.

She stated: "The Army should be more mindful of those who serve them so well, and their families. But these young men and women are treated as numbers, not people.

They take them off to fight, but then they don't want to have to deal with what they have to see and do, and what that does to them."

To make matters worse, it has been recorded that an estimated 13,000 ex-military men and women have been rendered homeless after leaving the military, some have been found dead on streets throughout the country.

Les Standish, received the Military Medal for his outstanding service in the Falklands War, yet was left homeless for 6 months after leaving the military, battling PTSD on his own. Things spiraled out of control when he took to alcohol in a desperate attempt to self medicate against sleeplessness and flashbacks from his war experience overseas.

It was during his time on the street that he met with hundreds of ex military servicemen from the Falklands conflict as well as veterans from recent wars such as Iraq and Afghanistan sleeping rough on street corners, parks and bus stops begging for pennies to survive.

Cait Smith, who has been suffering from PTSD for 20 years after her entire command was killed in the 1994 Mull of Kentyre helicopter crash; (an incident shrouded in conspiracy and falsified facts) had this to say to The Mirror:

"Homelessness among the veterans' community is getting worse by the month. The youngest we have dealt with is an 18-year-old and the oldest is 97. And we helped people of every age in between.

When I left the Army in 1997 I was a single mum. I had nowhere to live and a child to look after. I felt as though I had somehow failed. I was eventually given help and got my life back together.

But I received no help from the Armed Forces. It was from charities and friends."

Cait Smith and her fiancé Scott Hawtrey who run The Bolton Armed Forces Centre for Veterans, in North West England are 'overfull' and severely underfunded for doing what they believe to be extremely important; to support veterans suffering from the aftermath of war and homelessness.

The Armed Forces Covenant made in law in 2011, signed by all the local authorities, states, "Veterans should have priority status in applying for Government-sponsored affordable housing schemes, and service leavers should retain this status for a period of discharge. Support should be available for all service personnel in order to assist their transition from service to civilian life."

Was this all lip-work?

Charity organizers across the country say that huge budget cuts to the Armed Forces since 2010, resulted in over 30,000 troops losing their jobs. Many soldiers diagnosed with PTSD are discharged from service each year, placing them at risk once they hit civilian life. Sufferers from mental illness, anxiety and depression have even lost their homes due to unemployment driving them to suicide.

Tommy Robinson, who encountered members of the Military at a gas station in Watford, caused tremendous controversy across main-stream media recently, for having his picture taken with young Army Cadets, resulting in the discharge of a 17 year old Cadet whose only dream was to serve his country.

The #SOLDIERX campaign began soon after to prevent the young man from losing a career in the Army. This situation however, opened up a whole new can of worms, more serious in my opinion than what you've just read.

Hundreds of soldiers and officers have since come forward and expressed their discontent in the way soldiers are being treated in the military; from poor living conditions inside their barracks, to bug infested food, ill treatment by their commanding officers, physical abuse as well as sexual assault on young Cadets, and no one being held accountable for wrong doing.

Soldiers have had enough of the 'political correctness' agenda within the Armed Forces and want change. There is a fundamental disconnect between Top Brass and soldiers, who say that their superiors conduct themselves like politicians rather than military officers.

Thousands of soldiers left the Armed Forces last year, due to 'low morale' among other reasons, and if this continues, there won't be an army left standing, at least, not as we know it today. The UK political class will be forced to resort to their much anticipated plan -- the establishment of a new army, something along the lines of an EU Army. How convenient, especially while Brexit is dangling on a thin wire.

Tommy Robinson is due to meet members of Congress in the U.S. this month. He will also be visiting 5 major cities in Australia. I sincerely hope his visit will bring about the kind of change our servicemen and women deserve as well as the great people of the United Kingdom.

As a former member of the British Army, I am deeply anguished by the treatment of our soldiers who deserve better than what has been handed to them. I pray that the powers that be change their wicked ways or they will be faced with a force they cannot fathom -- the full weight of the judgement of God.

Luke 6:20 says: "Blessed be ye poor: for yours is the kingdom of God."

Note, how Jesus did not promise the kingdom to the wealthy and the powerful.
