

Coalition to End Sexual Exploitation Summit in DC

Angelika Selle
February 24, 2018

STANDING UP FOR WOMEN'S DIGNITY

Dear WFWP Friends and Supporters,
Have you noticed the increasing number of women speaking out about their experiences of sexual harassment and assault, such as in the "Me Too" movement? We are also seeing more and more uncovering of unacceptable behavior of people in public positions, which has sparked a national dialogue on the topic. Issues relating to the treatment of women are increasingly being brought to light, which raises an urgent need for them to be addressed.

As we at WFWP seek to promote and protect women's dignity, today we would like to extend an invitation from one of our friends and partners, Dawn Hawkins, Senior Vice President & Executive Director of the National Center on Sexual Exploitation (NCOSE).

We first met and collaborated with Dawn after one of our WFWP members attended the 2016 "Set Free Summit", a conference promoting positive solutions to the pervasive problem of Internet pornography and sexual addiction. Dawn is a powerful, passionate speaker and advocate on defending human dignity and exposing sexual exploitation in all its forms.

NCOSE'S annual Global Summit will be happening in just a few short weeks. It takes place just outside of Washington, D.C. and will bring together academics, activists, attorneys, authors, advocates, and survivors who have something important to say about our sexually exploitative culture and what is being done to fix it.

Click on the link below to find out more about the Summit schedule and speakers and how you can get involved.

Coalition to End Sexual Exploitation Global Summit 2018

LOCATION: Washington, DC
DATE: April 4 - 7, 2018

Click Here to Read More

