

Happy International Women's Day 2018!

Happy International Women's Day 2018!

Angelika Selle
March 8, 2018

What a wonderful thing it is to be a woman? Or is it?

As many women and girls have been asking themselves that question in light of the "fate" of women in history, the suffering, lack of support, lack of having a voice, etc., there is more hope at this time than you might think. Why?

May I invite you to take a moment to listen to this encouraging message from a well-known leadership coach here in America, John Maxwell:

It is when our men, husbands and sons acknowledge who we are, that we really have hope. And the next step would be for women AND men to discuss together as to how to put an end to sex trafficking, domestic violence, divorce, and other social ills.

Based on the trend we see, and as expressed by Mr. Maxwell, we predict that women's fate today is indeed in the process of changing toward that of hope, having a voice and being heard. Women's and especially mother's inner wisdom, creativity and insight will be called upon more and more to bring solutions to today's problems and help usher into an era of lasting peace.

In the meantime, let us acknowledge, love and celebrate ourselves on this day and this month in a special way, and thank our Creator who has created us in His and Her image, as precious daughters with equal value given to us from birth.

Therefore, yes, it is great to be a woman, to know it and to show it!

Happy International Women's Day 2018!

Angelika Selle, President WFWP USA
Juanita Pierre-Louis, Senior Vice President, WFWP USA
Katarina Connery, Vice President WFWP USA
WFWP USA Board, Staff and Chairwomen nationwide

