

Romanian Workshop Blends DP with Service

Bong Moon Jeong - December 8, 2018

On December 8, we organized a successful one-day Divine Principle workshop and social project together with CARP members and GMP international members.

Three young persons received the contents of a one-day Divine Principle workshop, and 13 others participated in the social project “Helping Elders.”

Our lecturers prepared the lectures on Principle of Creation, Human Fall and Principle of Restoration. Each lecture lasted 30 minutes, followed by 10 minutes of discussion centered on questions given by the lecturer.

Our guests were aged between 15 and 19 years, and they had an open mind and many questions about the Divine Principle. After the lectures we enjoyed lunch that was prepared by two of our lovely CARP members.

In the afternoon we gathered to start the “Helping Elders” social project. Our purpose in initiating this project was to shorten the generation gap between young people and elders and to create a positive give-and-receive relationship between the generations.

The volunteers prepared food packages and went out in teams to give them to senior citizens. The experience was very meaningful, both for the young and the older people.

After we finished, we discussed the lessons we could gain from this experience.

The conclusion of the volunteers was very precious, as they stated that they found joy in giving to others and will repeat the experience in the future.
