

Making the Most of Winter Break

After a long semester of focusing on school, winter break is a needed breath of fresh air. It's a break from school and a chance to recharge your spirit. While it's important to work hard in getting your degree, we are so much more than our academic pursuits.

Make sure to take time to balance your education so you are alive, free, and connected to the world around you. Your time in school will be more meaningful if you can connect to what's really important and learn how to make an impact on the world with your education.

That's why CARP promotes #PrinciplesWorthLiving and #ConversationsThatMatter so we can connect to something bigger than ourselves.

These winter break opportunities give students and young adults a much-needed chance to reflect and connect with God, humanity, and the world.

'Revival Starts with Me' Rally

Connect with other students and people of faith at the 'Revival Starts With Me' Rally in Gardena, Los Angeles on Saturday, December 16th. Co-sponsored by the American Clergy Leadership Conference (ACLC) and CARP, this will be a rousing and inspiring celebration of faith, peace, and the power of prayer in reviving our nation and world. The world is in need of so much healing and we can be part of the solution by coming together as global citizens. We can make a difference on world issues, like the relationship between North and South Korea, by creating peace in ourselves, relationships, communities, and more.
