"One's Portion of Responsibility and the Process of Growth" was the first topic presented to about 50 students ranging from 12 to 16 years old who are participating in the West Las Vegas Arts Center Summer Performing Arts camp 2018. This is the first of a series of 7 lectures.

Emphasis was made on the importance for teens to understand the value of this time in their lives so they can make the best possible choices for their future.

In today's culture, choices are not just limited to what to wear and eat, but are often much more serious. In many schools, there is a possibility some students are at least offered drugs, alcohol, and cigarettes and the choice for each one of them will be how to respond.

FEEF's education is aimed at providing our youth with the tools to make wise and healthy choices.
