

Oceania Leadership Training Team helps people displaced by forest fires

Randall Lay Tin
February 1, 2019

S., James and other 2nd Gen were on a Leadership Training Team in Oceania, (Australia and the Pacific Islands).

February, 2009: There were bush fires (forest fires) around at the time they were coming back to the church set in the Melbourne hills. They were directed to stay the night in a shelter set up by Red Cross for residents evacuated from their homes.

Ever with the "Living for the sake of others" motto, they made themselves available to help the displaced people overnight.

(These photos were taken after fundraising near Geelong [Australia]. I took them to a local golf course to see the kangaroos)

The national leaders were frantic since they didn't know what happened to the team. No calls could get through because of the fires.

My bad.

They did get a message to me, but I didn't realize I was the only one who knew so I didn't tell leaders until hours later.

