The Anatomy of Cultural Marxism and Why it Always Leads to Aggression, Divisiveness, and a Decline in Social Well-Being

By Stephen Stacey

We all see there is an abnormal amount of tension in today’s political discourse. Also, many see deep, inherent problems in the progressive’s worldview, also known as cultural Marxism. It’s important to understand the inherent problems in many of the policies that the progressives advocate today and why these policies automatically lead to increased levels of antagonism. Economic Marxism, as practiced in the USSR and Communist China, followed the following pattern. The Marxists said their laws would make the world a better place. They said that compassion for the poor was their motivator. They took away natural rights from all citizens (the right of ownership) and replaced these natural rights with politically created rights. They called all those who disagreed with them, who said that taking away the natural right of ownership would cause more social problems than it solved, nasty names (The nasty bourgeoisie). They shut down free speech, not allowing people to discuss the possible negative outcomes of taking the right of ownership away from everyone. There were people who saw the damage that would happen when natural rights were violated and those who couldn’t. Those who couldn’t increasingly just believed in the rightness of their cause. The State, having sided with those who couldn’t see the damage that was inherent in violating natural rights, became increasingly authoritarian and aggressive against all those who saw the decay that would happen. Millions of ‘enemies of the people’ were killed. The leaders had comfortable lives, but the lives of ordinary citizens became increasingly worse. Most citizens ended up living on the poverty line. Eventually, after all the killing was done and the decay was seriously evident, these nations returned to the natural law of the free market economy. And their nations went through an economic boom. But the killing and decay was done. Decades of suffering needlessly created. On the other hand, cultural Marxism is a term that

748 babies saved from abortions in 40 Days for Life’s Lent campaign. 40 Days For Life, Abortion, Culture Of Life, Good News, Pro-Life Activism, Sidewalk Counselling

April 16, 2019 (LifeSiteNews) – Timed to coincide with Lent, the latest 40 Days campaign began on March 6 in 377 cities across the United States, United Kingdom, and 29 other countries around the world. Volunteers have been stationed outside abortion facilities for 12 hours a day to conduct prayer vigils and offer sidewalk counselling to women considering abortion. “The whole point of this is to take a positive and upbeat pro-life message to the whole community,” Robert Colquhoun, 40 Days’ Director of International Campaigns, told LifeSiteNews last month. “It is simple, and effective, because it works. Lives are saved, hearts and minds and changed and eternal souls are impacted. Abortion workers leave [their employment] and abortion centres close.” In Memphis, Tennessee, a man named Marcus who reluctantly accompanied his girlfriend to Planned Parenthood spoke with the sidewalk counsellor, who promised help and convinced him to text her to leave the building before going through with the abortion. The couple left “smiling” and eager to go to a pregnancy centre instead, and Marcus even participated in the prayer vigil. In Cincinnati, Ohio, a traffic delay kept a woman from leaving Planned Parenthood’s parking lot long enough for a 40 Days volunteer to offer help, to which she revealed, “I changed my mind. I didn’t do it. It’s a baby!” Many other stories can be found on 40 Days’ blog and Facebook page. Not every interacapplies to a growing body of poorly thought out laws that follow these same dynamics. They also bring about a constant decline in social well-being rather than improvements. For example, the politically created right to abort a fetus, a new life, is one of these laws. It was one of several laws created over forty years ago which created a vast amount of social damage. For example, these laws raised the jail rates in the USA from some three hundred thousand inmates to well over two million in a few short years. Abortion law, out of compassion for the woman, takes away a child's natural right to life and replaces this right with a politically invented right for women. When looking at the research to understand what happened to society after the legalizing of abortion, we find that the negative, wider, social outcomes of passing abortion law far outweighed any positive benefits that society gained. After abortion was legalized, almost all measures of social well-being declined rather than improved. For example, rates of single parenting didn't fall. They rose. Also, many men, who would have normally married their pregnant girlfriend, now encouraged her to have an abortion. Since marriage is one of the primary ways to bring about the socialization of men, the lack of marriage caused many more men to carry on their carefree lives. As marital rates fell, incarceration rates rapidly increased. We saw this scenario occurring in many African-American communities where Planned Parenthood built an abortion clinic. Out-of-wedlock births increased. Marriage rates fell. Drug abuse rates increased. More violence occurred. Many more males ended up in jail. Worse outcomes for these and many other communities. Today, those people who disagree with the legalizing of abortion because they see the worse outcomes that are inflicted on a wide range of citizens, women included, are often told they are nasty. The ability to speak freely about abortion becomes increasingly confrontational. Again, there are those who can see the harmful outcomes that affect us all and those who can't. A far more effective intervention, one that actually did reduce unwanted, out-of-wedlock pregnancies would involve better preventative education, more cooperation from the media, and better support for at-risk groups. This would have been far cheaper for society, actually effective, and would not have led to the many other harmful social problems that abortion law created. But for many of us, the plight of the unhappy pregnant woman who stands before us today overwhelms the senses. "Allow her to terminate her pregnancy, and let's not look at all the other people who have far worse outcomes because of this legal invention." Although poorly formed, no-fault divorce law is not pushed forward by the cultural-Marxists, it too contains the same internal dynamics as economic Marxism - compassion, natural rights taken away, political rights created, and much more damage to the social fabric than it solved. Ideally, the more helpful intervention would be more like: "We will give you all the help we can - marriage education, marital-counselling, and coaching - in order to see if we can help you get your marital relationship back on track because your children and society would be best protected if we can succeed. If our help doesn't work, then you can terminate your marital promise". The fact that around fifty percent of divorcees regret their divorce shows that something else other than no-fault needs to be created - that many couples would have appreciated a more supportive framework to help them work their difficulties out. And research shows that supportive interventions can substantially reduce rates of divorce if they are applied in a timely fashion. The redefining of marriage so-as-to perfectly suit the non-reproductive unions of gays and lesbians is another politically-invented right, again created in the name of compassion for one small group of citizens. In redefining marriage, the politicians took away the natural rights of many other citizens. For example, they took away the natural right of the child to be raised by a mother and a father. Extensive research clearly shows the increased risks that can beset any child if either a father or mother is missing from their life. The politicians also extended a political right to homosexuals allowing them to buy and sell babies, all against the natural will of the child - something that we found, in the era of slavery, had the potential to cause long-term emotional harm and violate a person's natural rights. The politicians also took away the natural right of heterosexual children to be just taught about their own sexual nature, something that ultimately leads to worse life outcomes for those who seek to become experimental because it seems the cool thing to do.

Centre for Disease Control, USA 2015—outcomes for teens.
Behaviour/Experience Hetero – LBG: Dating Violence:
8% ,18%. Raped (Last 12 months): 5%, 18%. Ever Injected Illegal Drug: 1%, 5%

And, the politicians took away the natural right of heterosexuals to have a word that specifically applies to their baby-making unions. Historically, marriage has always been seen to be first and foremost about protecting one's biological children. In redefinition, obviously, this central meaning has to be removed. It is replaced by a meaning that is centred on the love between adults. But heterosexual couples already have that love. They don't need to marry to have that. So, in redefining marriage, heterosexuals lose the social request: "Please marry so as to best protect your biological children and the wider society" because marriage can't mean that anymore. Marriage holds less meaning for them. Thus, research carried out in almost all those countries where marriage is now redefined shows that immediately after redefinition there was a rapid decline in heterosexuals marrying. They increasingly entered fragile cohabitation instead - something that leads to, on average, worse life outcomes for adults, children, and the wider community. In redefinition, many others also lose their natural rights and suffer worse outcomes. For example, those who provide wedding services and also see the damage that redefining marriage creates also might lose their natural right to freely express their conscience. They are not homophobic. They are participating in an act of civil disobedience, refusing to participate in a law that they know hurts many groups of people. Because these natural rights have been taken away a wide number of groups of individuals now have worse life outcomes. The damage done to these various groups far outweighs the small positives that a small number of gays and lesbians experience. This doesn't mean that many homosexual couples can't be very good parents. It just means that a lot of damage is done to others in redefining a word that is really important to everyone else. There are some who see the future damage and those who can't. Those who can't see the damage call all those who see the damage by nasty names - bigot, homophobic, etc. The State, having sided with those who cannot see the damage, becomes increasingly authoritarian towards anyone who sees the damage. Careers can be lost in a sentence. Free speech is increasingly shut down. Massive fines can be imposed. Those who can't see the damage that the law creates become increasingly aggressive. The Bible, for revealing the damage, is increasingly seen as hate speech. Christians are increasingly seen as nasty people, not as people who care sincerely about the well-being of future society. All this has the potential to become increasingly nasty. (.....to be continued in next issue) tion has been positive. Late last month, an 85-year-old pro-life volunteer was shoved to the ground and repeatedly kicked outside a San Francisco Planned Parenthood location. But the overall fruits of 40 Days' efforts have been encouraging, and 40 Days says it plans a live webcast on April 30 to recap volunteers' impact. "Father, we have done battle with the power of evil, and therefore we can have compassion on those still within its grip," 40 Days for Life president Shawn Carney wrote. "We have been freed from the kingdom of darkness, and therefore we can bear witness to your Kingdom of Light. May the witness of all your people through these 40 Days for Life bear abundant fruit." Last year, 40 Days for Life reported that it has saved 14,000 lives since its campaigns first started in 2007.

Assisted suicide "the measure of a desperately cold, soulless society" say Scottish politicians - News at SPUC news@spuc.org.uk Mon 08/04/2019 16:59

"We think that in Scotland today we are better than that": Scottish politicians from across the political spectrum have spoken out against new efforts to legalise assisted suicide. Society should prevent suicide: A number of senior members of the Scottish Parliament (MSPs) have written a letter in The Sunday Times stating that "society should be preventing suicide, not assisting it". The letter is signed by Scottish Conservative MSPs Murdo Fraser, Jeremy Balfour, Donald Cameron and Gordon Lindhurst, Elaine Smith, Neil Bibby MSP and Mark Griffin MSP of Scottish Labour, the SNP's John Mason MSP, and Liberal Democrat MSP Mike Rumbles. It comes in response to a group of MSPs, including acting Scottish Tory leader Jackson Carlaw, former Scottish Labour leader Kezia Dugdale and Scottish Green co-convenor Patrick Harvie, who wrote to the paper last week supporting assisted suicide. Dignity in Dying have also been carrying out polling as part of a campaign to make yet another attempt at bringing legislation before Holyrood. Not assist it: The MSPs opposing assisted suicide disagree with their colleagues, asking: "Have we really become a society that says the best answer we can provide to those suffering in end-of-life situations is to help them kill themselves? Is that really all we can offer? That, to us, is the measure of a desperately cold, soulless society. We think that in Scotland today we are better than that." They also talk about the devastation that suicide causes for those left behind, and point out that Scotland has a suicide prevention strategy, for good reason. "For the state to say that suicide is to be assisted in certain circumstances means we are in danger of sending out mixed messages. Society should be preventing suicide, not assisting it"

Aborted babies are 'a real time metaphor for the broken culture that we live in' Abortion, Dr. Monica Miller, Pro-Life, Jonathon Van Maren, The Van Maren Show

April 24, 2019 (LifeSiteNews) — When Dr. Monica Miller was released from her 33-day stay in a Michigan jail last summer, she told LifeSiteNews that jail "has its blessings." Miller, a veteran in the pro-life movement who has been jailed on multiple occasions, was taken away for having participated in a Red Rose Rescue, an emerging form of pro-life activism where persons enter an abortion centre and council, speak with, sing to, and hand out roses to not just the women in the lobby but to clinic staff as well. In this revealing episode of the Van Maren Show, Dr. Miller, founder and director of Citizens for a Pro-Life Society, speaks with Jonathon Van Maren about her start in the pro-life movement in the 1970s as a graduate student at Loyola University Chicago and Marquette University in Milwaukee. She also talks about the impact taking photographs of aborted babies and showing them to the public has had on awakening people to the horrors of abortion. Once you see aborted baby photos the "veil is torn away," and you "can never go back," she says. As human beings, "we are not meant to look at" babies in this state. Their broken bodies are "a real time metaphor for the broken culture that we live in." "I watched with my own eyes the awakening of souls" to the horror of abortion by showing photos to them. Dr Miller's photographs can be found at www.imagesofabortion.com. Miller's bestselling book Abandoned: The Untold Story of the Abortion Wars recounts the many experiences she had in the pro-life movement, which she shares with Van Maren. The two discuss how she went dumpster diving for aborted babies behind abortion clinics in Chicago, how she spent thousands upon thousands of hours doing sidewalk counselling outside abortion centres, and why she got involved in the fight for the unborn in the first place. [Quote from Mother Teresa: "We must not be surprised when we hear of murders, of killings, of wars, of hatred. If a mother can kill her own child, what is left but for us to kill each other."]

English pastor: LGBT indoctrination of kids is 'state-sponsored child abuse' - Church Of England, Homosexuality, Peter Hughes, Sex Ed, Transgenderism

WICKERSLEY, England, June 14, 2019 (LifeSiteNews) — An Anglican vicar has made headlines by stating publicly that LGBT indoctrination of children at school is a form of child abuse. The Reverend Peter Hughes, the rector of St. Alban's Church in Wickersley, South Yorkshire, caught media attention by publishing a three-page essay in his parish bulletin warning parents of the "danger posed by cultural Marxists" in authority in schools. His article was reproduced in the Mirror. "The culture war is heating up", Hughes began. "Christian parents need to wake up to the danger posed by cultural Marxists directly targeting their children with LGBTI ideology." "Christians should love those who self-identify as LGBTI along with all our neighbours," he continued, "but this cannot mean that we are obliged to celebrate LGBTI ideology and lifestyles and promote them to our children." The clergyman called England's proposed new Relationships and Sexual Education (RSE) program "state-sponsored child abuse," for it misleads and frightens children with its bizarre teaching that there are a variety of sexes and that they can choose between them. "A tearful seven-year-old girl asked her parents, 'Mummy, am I a boy or a girl? My teacher says I can choose,'" Hughes related. He also noted that the Tavistock Clinic, Britain's one so-called sexual reassignment center for minors, has seen an enormous rise in patients confused or distressed about their sex: "from 40 in 2009/10 to 1806 in 2017/18." Hughes suggested that the RSE programme, with its emphasis on sexual activity, is an inadvertent form of sexual grooming, "preparing [children] for early sexual experimentation" and thus opening "the door to sexual predators." The clergyman warned that RSE education is about to become compulsory, and that after September 2020, parents will no longer be allowed to remove their primary school aged children from "Relationships Education" or their secondary school aged children from RSE. In the United Kingdom, children begin secondary school at the age of 11. "As far as moral education is concerned, children will belong to the state," the vicar warned. Hughes commended the stand of Muslim parents in Birmingham who are rebelling against the pro-LGBT "No Outsiders" programme introduced to their children's school and contrasted their action to the response of Christian parents, who have "meekly acquiesced." "We all want to live in a world of 'love' where there are no outsiders, where bullying is opposed, and everyone is treated with dignity," he wrote. "But does that necessitate imposing LGBTI ideology on our children?" He suggested that teaching the "biblical truth" that everyone is made in the image of God should be enough to end bullying.

"Wake up! Via the Trojan horse of teaching tolerance and opposing bullying ... the LGBTI activists are imposing a sexual philosophy which at its heart is both anti-Christian and harmful," he wrote. The rector, who is also a governor of the St. Alban's Church of England Primary School, encouraged his parishioners to follow the example of their Muslim neighbours and insist on their human right to have their children educated in their own beliefs. Alison Adair, the "Executive Headteacher," has distanced St. Alban's C of E Primary School from the rector, saying that they did not share or agree with his views and, believing that he has brought the school into "disrepute," have begun a "due process" including a "full investigation." "We are fully behind the new Department for Education proposals around the new Sex and Relationships Education (SRE) teaching curriculum,” she wrote to parents and guardians, “but as with any changes to our children’s education, we will inform and work with parents before the full implementation in 2020.” According to Christianity Today, the conservative, evangelical-Anglican Church Society has defended the vicar, saying, “Revd Peter Hughes’ article reflects the very real concerns of Christian parents, educators, and clergy all over the country. Church Society is working to support and encourage those who stand against the intolerance of the LGBT activists in our schools.” To send messages of support to the Reverend Peter Hughes, please direct your correspondence to: Rev. Re: Reproductive Rights in Northern Ireland: Dear Rosena, [Allin-Khan MP] I am surprised that abortion is being called a human right. Is it the human right of a mother to abort a fetus at any time just because she does not want the baby? Why is not killing a 1-hour old baby then also a human right? And what about the human right of the unborn? Or is the unborn no human being, not deserving a human right? So what is the difference then between an unborn in the 9th month and a one hour old baby? Why should one have human rights, and the other not? To think that abortion is a human right makes no sense. We are playing with the lives of human beings, unborn or not. There is no justification for abortion, apart from a few extreme cases. In other cases. Just as there is no justification in killing a one day old. I wonder why some people are so eager on abortion in all kinds of cases. Seems to be for selfish reasons. And that does not justify abortion, just as it does not justify murder. Best regards, Bruno Klotz

On April 27th together with other members of the Harrow branch of The Society for the Protection of Unborn Children John O’Neill delivered abortion information leaflets door-to-door in the Wealdstone and Stanmore areas of NW London.

On April 18th John O’Neill spoke on an LBC national radio phone-in programme about the disruption being caused by climate protesters in London, causing people to miss hospital appointments and blocking emergency vehicles etc, was totally wrong. On another occasion John was held in a queue to speak on LBC about knife crime. Unfortunately, time ran out before John could speak.

Information factsheets which contain the results of studies and surveys, regarding key family, moral issues continue to be sent to MPs, media people etc. Abortion decriminalisation booklets and leaflets from The Society for the Protection of Unborn Children have been widely distributed, as have other items from SPUC, including the newsletters Safe At School and PRO -LIFE TODAY, and also postcards addressed to the Education Secretary regarding parental rights.

John O’Neill has continued speaking in different churches about the importance of parents protecting their children from the LGBT indoctrination in schools. John has highlighted about how the Muslim parents in Birmingham have successfully been at the forefront of this battle for the innocence and purity of our children. The Safe at School newsletters are handed out and John encourages the parents to speak out about this matter, following the Muslim parents’ example, and that help and advice is always available from Safe at School. John also gives examples of how even one person can achieve great things in relevant circumstances when they are strongly motivated, adding that Almighty God is 100% behind those people who want to protect their children from LGBT indoctrination.

Challenging trans ideology in schools and elsewhere

By Dr Julie Maxwell

As a paediatrician, parent and school governor I have become increasingly concerned about the agenda around trans ideology, both in schools and in the medical world. As a result I have found myself scarily propelled into this whole arena on a number of fronts. Last summer an article regarding the medical care of children with gender dysphoria was published in the paediatric journal Archives of Disease in Childhood. Together with two colleagues, I wrote a response entitled: ‘Puberty blockers, a momentous step in the dark’ (see Bulletin 173, February 2019). In association with some other doctors (both GPs and psychiatrists) we are now seeking to enter into dialogue with the Royal Colleges and the General Medical Council. A group of concerned individuals in Hampshire is seeking to challenge the promotion of LGBT issues through the school curriculum. Hampshire County Council has produced ‘LGBT+ guidance for Hampshire schools and colleges’, It is heavily based on Cornwall’s Schools transgender guidance and recommends No Outsiders, the resource which has been at the centre of controversy in Birmingham (see Bulletin 174, May 2019). We are also part of a wider Facebook group of mothers and professionals who are appalled by the ideology and sexuality being promoted in schools. In some parts of the country these grassroots campaigns have been successful in persuading local authorities to agree to reviewing the guidance, an exhibition at the South Bank Centre called ‘Kiss my Genders’ has also aroused concern. The publicity describes it as ‘a group exhibition celebrating more than 30 international artists whose work explores and engages with gender identity’. It has also hosted a training session for schoolteachers to explore ways of talking about gender with children and special events for 13-17-year olds. In connection with my work for Lovewise, I have run into issues with the second edition of Valuing All God’s Children, the guidance for Church of England schools on challenging homophobic, biphobic and transphobic bullying. This document has been used to get Lovewise lessons cancelled in a Church of England primary school, primarily because of the idea that to teach traditional Christian views about marriage and sex and to uphold biological realities in relation to gender ‘gives children and young people a reason to exclude’ those who identify as LGBT and thus fails to provide ‘a safe space for ALL children’. I am now working with others to try challenge the Church of England on this within the Winchester diocese. This article is published by permission of Family Education Trust

International Day of Families Observed at UN -

Written by Lynn Walsh, director, Universal Peace Federation Office of the Family - Wednesday, May 15, 2019

New York, United States—A large audience gathered at the UN headquarters to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the International Day of Families. The co-sponsorship of this event, held on May 15, 2019, in the United Nations Economic and Social Council (ECOSOC) chamber, was significant. First, it was co-sponsored by the UN Group of Friends of the Family, a coalition of 25 pro-family UN member states. In addition, at least 18 UN NGOs, including the Universal Peace Federation, co-sponsored this family-affirming event. All co-sponsors reaffirm that the family is entitled to protection by society and the state, as defined by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The International Day of Families was initiated in 1994 as a UN resolution calling on governments, civil society, and international agencies to focus on “creating among governments, policymakers, and the public a greater awareness of the family as the natural and fundamental unit of society.” This gathering certainly raised the awareness of the critical role of the natural family. The first panel of dignitaries was opened by Mr. Valentine Rybykov, the permanent representative of the Republic of Belarus. He stated that as the family forms the moral foundation of society, preserves cultural identities, and shapes children into pro-social citizens, it is the starting point to reduce poverty and climate change and must be strengthened and protected. Mr. Jassim Sayar Al-

TRUE FAMILY VALUES MINISTRY

The Conjugal Realm of Heart

A. The conjugal realm of heart.

7. The sexual organs are the place of their union, where they meet with God in a tremendous explosion of love

- They are the most holy place of the body.
- The sexual organs should be treated as a holy temple and palace of true love. None can enter but the high priest, the spouse. If anyone else enters, the holiness is defiled.
- The male organ belongs to the wife. To let another woman use it is robbery. Likewise the female organ belongs to the husband.
- Thus, the sexual organs are hidden and kept with modesty. (Pornography is a tremendous evil, because it violates the realm of conjugal heart and multiplies this violation to the society level. This defiles the sanctity of the society.)
- The sexual organs' mysterious function is the source of new life.
- There, God's electric love merges with the couple through the forty billion cells of their bodies

8. Husband-wife love can never be broken; there is no concept of divorce.

- Any competing love pales in comparison to true conjugal love.
- The starting point of conjugal love is God, moving vertically through the conscience to the heart to the holy place.
- Conjugal love endures even though the body grows old.
- True conjugal love deepens and grows forever in the spirit world. Death is not the end.

9. The equal value of husband and wife.

- From the viewpoint of the cosmos, the husband represents heaven, the Creator God, because he contains the seed. The wife represents the earth because she receives and nurtures the seed in her body. Therefore, husband and wife represent the entire cosmos, heaven and earth.
- In fulfilling these responsibilities, one person takes the leading role as the subject partner. The partner supports as the object partner. Usually, the man is the subject partner by virtue of his role in society, and his wife is the supporting object partner. There is a natural order that the man should have a more public role and be the breadwinner. Men are endowed with minds and bodies more fit to hard labour and to the time-space demands of public life (irregular schedule and location).
- But sometimes, the woman has the leading role and her husband is the object partner (e.g. Margaret Thatcher, Jeanne Kirkpatrick, Indira Gandhi, Golda Meir).
- Working out disputes between the partners always honours their relationship over and above the separate interests of each.
- Women's true liberation does not weaken the family

bond. Love is true liberation, and true love strengthens the family. Women can move their husbands to their way of thinking with love and service. Betty Friedan is but one modern feminist who repented of her earlier advocacy of women's "liberation" which impoverished family life.

10. The lack of conjugal love is the root of the problems of this world.

- Some couples marry as virgins, but most do not. Some couples are better than others, but there are no couples who have achieved true conjugal love.
- This is a spiritual barrier for all mankind. Because of it, many religions teach that the way to find God is to live a celibate life. The root of this spiritual problem goes back to the fall of man.
- Love between husband and wife grows colder as society progresses externally, leading to abuse, frustration, infidelity and divorce.
- Children suffer irreparable psychological and spiritual damage as a result of divorce. They lose the capacity to sustain their own male-female relationships, and are likely to divorce as their parents did.
- All manner of sexual perversions arise as people seek to fulfil their longing for conjugal love which is not fulfilled in marriage (adultery, prostitution, pornography, rape and incest).

The failure to fulfil the children's, brother-sister and conjugal realms of heart is the result of the lack of parental love. We have never had true parents, or known true parental love. Since every child is born with the nature to receive true parental love, to receive anything less is to abuse the child. Abused children grow up into flawed parents. Thus we are a world of flawed parents and abused children.

The Parental Realm of Heart

A. The parental realm of heart.

1. Through the conjugal union, children are given birth.

- Husband and wife resemble God and share His creative nature. They create their own children.
- God bequeaths His love to them as parents. They, in turn, manifest fully the love of God to their children.
- In one sense, husband and wife are greater than God, because God had only two children, and we can have many more than that.
- God is joyful when true parents have children.

2. God feels His own creativity as the Creator through human beings in bearing and rearing children.

- He feels such joy in the smile of an exhausted new mother on her hospital bed holding her new-born baby.
- She resembles God's own experience giving birth to mankind.
- Because of this, mothers have the deepest connection with the Heart of God.

3. The parents act in the position of God, creating and educating their children.

Letter to President Trump

Dear President Trump, Greetings and best wishes to you and your family. The course that you are currently walking to save America and therefore the world, is a veritable minefield and web of booby traps. Your enemies are desperate to stop you, and will stop at nothing to destroy you and America. The illegal crossing of your borders which is truly an invasion, is symptomatic of what is happening to your nation as a whole. There being an invasion of lies, fake news, humanistic ideologies and practices that are an anathema to Christianity and the 'true' American way of life. The unwashed hordes 'who haven't washed their robes' and 'are not entering the city by the gate', are taking over America, mind by mind, heart by heart, body by body. God's side is being overrun by secular humanism, centring on immorality. That is fornication of whatever persuasion. This is America's real problem. Rev 22:14 "Blessed are those who wash their robes, that they may have the right to the tree of life and may go through the gates into the city. 15 Outside are the dogs, those who practice magic arts, the sexually immoral, the murderers, the idolaters and everyone who loves and practices falsehood". America must wake up to this reality. The real 'cancer' of this era we live in is immorality, that which breaks up families, destroys lives, damages hearts, minds and bodies, compromises people, and hence lays the foundation for even greater evil to come. If we treat our own bodies and other people's bodies this way, which are the Temples of God (1 Cor 3:16), then we have already opened ourselves up to unwanted outcomes, invasions of our body to disease and unwanted pregnancies, and separating ourselves from God as Adam and Eve did. Similarly, America is being invaded by foreign elements, 'organisms' which wish to harm America's heart, soul, mind and body, rendering America the host nation for a myriad of parasites. Shortly America will not be able to function, rendered impotent by these 'foreign invading elements'. Both men and women must control their sexual organs until they are married in the sight of God. There is no such thing as 'Free Sex'. There is a huge price to pay, as America is finding out right now. As I explained previously, the 'Fall of Man' was first of all, illicit sex between the Archangel Lucifer and Eve through their spiritual bodies, and then the physical sexual fall between Adam and Eve whilst they were still in an immature, imperfect state. This is what opened up 'Pandora's Box', with all the horrendous and tragic consequences that we witness in the world around us today, and throughout history. America must repent like Nineveh, and your Administration lead a campaign promoting sexual purity, and abstinence before marriage. God cannot deal with, and accept impurity and defilement. It is only through stable marriages centring on, and only on, one man and one woman, that families and society can be truly free and secure. Anything else is an aberration caused by the Fall, not God's original design. Genesis 1:27 Would God create an inherent contradiction, resulting in conflict in His own Creation? It is due to man not fulfilling his responsibility to keep God's Word, that suffering, injustice, depravity and inequality came about. Our children are under threat, and many have already been destroyed through child sex trafficking taking place in, or going through America. Your enemies and the enemies of God are using illicit sex and depravity to destroy Western Civilisation; the sanctity of marriage, the family, and our children, they being the future. Now young children are being exposed to a barrage of damaging sexual material and conduct, as in 'Drag Queen' story time, aka paedophiles, and sexual indoctrination, beginning in elementary school. This is enslaving them into a cult of disorder and depravity from a very young age, so that they will be psychologically, spiritually and emotionally damaged for life, not able to confidently participate in society and enjoy normal human interaction. Americans should be ashamed of themselves, that this level of degradation has swept their country. Along with late term abortions, this is America essentially indulging in a form of 'child sacrifice' and abuse, metaphorically and literally, as the Canaanites and Incas practised to gratify some ruling priestly caste, and or their gods. The economy may be important, but it is not the most important thing. If you are destroying yourselves through rampant immorality, families are falling apart, and your children are being destroyed spiritually and physically, and you have diseases and drugs pouring into your country, then what have you really got, virtually nothing? Do you want to go the way of Rome and Greece and many other outwardly prosperous nations throughout history, but inwardly were 'whited sepulchres full of dead man's bones'? As Jesus said: Mt 4:4 "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God". That being the Ten Commandments and the Gospels. It's nice to call out Jesus' name, but who is living by the Word of God that Jesus taught. As the King of Nineveh lead the people into repentance, and as King David adorned ashes and sackcloth to publicly repent for his sins, President Trump also needs to lead such an initiative to stir the hearts and minds of the American people to remember who they are and what they were called to do. The Kingdom of Heaven begins with repentance, as both Jesus and John the Baptist exhorted the people to do. America is now playing catch up, trying to return to the nation she once was, favoured by God and experiencing God's blessing, not God's curse as is currently the case. America must make an offering as God charged His prophets and the people to do. America herself must be that offering, divided, placed on the altar, with good subjugating evil. The right-hand side of the offering is placed on top of the left-hand side. God's people can no longer be lukewarm but burning hot to do God's Will. The American people, and President Donald Trump, must now continually seek and speak of God and God's Will, nothing else truly matters as we seek first God's Kingdom. What else could be more important? This is your destiny, and why God called you, for no other reason. You must be united in heart with Jesus and your Father in Heaven, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth as it is in Heaven". I would like to address another issue of major importance concerning securing God's family, that is security for the world, and prosperity for all. The red flags, red herrings and flares you have been experiencing, will only intensify, to obscure, and distract you from accomplishing what you need to be doing in accordance with God's Will right now. That is: MEET WITH PRESIDENT PUTIN! The Fall of Man was about a family and the relationships within that family, not money, wealth or resources. The destiny of the human family lay within the relationships of that family. Adam and Eve severed their relationship with God, and in the next generation the children severed their relationship horizontally with each other. That also took away the chance for reconciliation and healing for the fallen parents Adam and Eve and their relationship with God. That is what matters most. Technology, business, science would all follow in due course centring on a true sinless family, as God had originally intended. That is why the Third Blessing, having dominion over the natural world followed the first Two Blessings, be perfect (fruitful), and marry, forming a family (multiply). Genesis 1:27-28 On the foundation of the first two blessings being accomplished, the third would naturally follow. Fallen man however emphasized the

Inspiring Examples of Religious People Taking Responsibility in Defending Moral and Family Values

By John O'Neill

In this edition of the Update we have the very powerful article by Rev. Peter Hughes concerning the LGBT agenda which is targeting children in schools. Rev. Hughes makes it very clear in his article what is really happening behind the trojan horse, pernicious, tolerance and equality LGBT agenda. Special thanks to Rev. Hughes for speaking out in such a forthright and unequivocal way. In the Spring edition of the Update we saw another very powerful article by Bruno Klotz concerning an email he sent to his MP regarding the very serious issue of abortion. Like Rev. Hughes, Bruno wrote in a forthright and unequivocal way, highlighting the fact that convenience abortions are the murder of an unborn child! It is vitally important when defending moral and family values that the full facts are given to relevant people such as the results of studies and surveys etc. Giving such information will mean that people can no longer say, "nobody told me", and will speed things up because Almighty God in his own time will surely bring judgment upon relevant people who have been given the pertinent facts, if they choose to continue in their wicked ways.

Very inspiring recent news from MassResistance USA: Our latest MassResistance chapter – based in Lakewood, New Jersey – has hit the ground running! Led by local Orthodox Jews and working with area Christians, they are taking on the LGBT agenda publicly and without fear. They've recently held three public protests, and they're just getting started! New Jersey MassResistance was started by a group of Orthodox Jews in Lakewood, NJ who have been horrified by the LGBT movement targeting their community. MassResistance has worked with their local leader since 2015. Their community decided it was time to organize the resistance! It didn't take long for local Catholic and Protestant religious leaders and their congregations to join them. The force behind it: Rabbi Yehuda Levin of Brooklyn, NY, has been a strong figure in the pro-family movement for decades. MassResistance began working with him in 2004 when he came to Boston to oppose the imposition of "gay marriage" on the state, and we have helped each other on several projects since then. Rabbi Levin is closely aligned with the Orthodox rabbis in Lakewood, NJ. Seeing what was going on, he made a series of videos to rally the Orthodox community and also to get the local Christian community involved. This got things rolling. Then he travelled to Lakewood to join the protests personally. The following is a report involving one of the New Jersey M.R.

Protests: Protesting "Pride month celebrations" at local public library: *Unfortunately, there was more to come at the local Ocean Park Public Library, which is also just blocks from Orthodox synagogues as well as Christian churches. The library draws many Orthodox Jewish children from the area. During the month of June, the library aggressively celebrated "Gay Pride Month." According to local reports, this included "displays of LGBT themes, books with LGBT characters, LGBT speakers and presentations, movie screenings and other events that are geared toward varying ages." In other words, it was purposefully pushing a perverse anti-family agenda on the local religious community. As a result, a nearby Jewish school, Yeshiva Orchos Chaim, told parents it was their official policy was that no child should go to the public library during the month of June. Furthermore, as the Lakewood MassResistance leaders noted, the library's offensive activity contradicts its own policy, which states that: *The Library strives to create a warm, welcoming environment for our customers of all ages ... The library is a public place and the safety of children is therefore a serious concern ... Young children need to feel safe and secure. But the library officials ignored the complaints from the parents. So, Rabbi Levin called for a protest outside the library on the evening of June 27. Again, the Orthodox activists leafleted the neighbourhoods. And again, the local liberal media reacted angrily to the upcoming protest: But the protest was another big success! This time over 110 people came to protest. Nearly a quarter of them were Christians, the rest Orthodox Jews. The local Bible Baptist Church sent its pastor and many others to take part. A lot of people – including public officials – got the message! (Again, about 15 LGBT counter-protesters tried to intimidate them but weren't effective at all.) Final thoughts: Orthodox Jews believe that it's important to fight back against immoral attacks on one's community, even if the odds are stacked against you. They also believe that one must not shy away from telling the truth. We absolutely agree. And from what we've seen, that attitude and approach always brings positive results in some way, despite what you are up against. You'll be seeing more from New Jersey MassResistance! This very inspiring news from MassResistance is particularly poignant because if the religious people will work together in defending moral and family values this will enable Almighty God to work in a very powerful way. Religious unity is a vital and key component in the spiritual/moral war we are facing in our world today, and religious people are meant to act as the conscience of each nation. Ezekiel 3:18. Psalm 133:1 "Behold how good and pleasant it is when brothers dwell in unity!" There are many other examples which could be given of individuals and various moral groups who are all doing sterling work in defending traditional moral and family values. Let us all take heart from the collective and individual examples given in this article. May each one of us determine to do our best by not hesitating to act when required concerning defending moral and family values. As well as our actions, prayer and repentance are also vital components concerning the better world that we all long to see. KEY PRAYER POINT: The urgent need for a religious ethos to again be prevalent in our nation to counteract the political, humanistic anti-family, anti-godly ideology. Saint Augustine: "Pray as though everything depends on God. Act as though everything depends on you."

Maawda, chargé d'affaires and deputy permanent representative of the State of Qatar, explained that the centrality of the family is enshrined in the Qatar constitution and that the nation's pro-family policies have had a measurable positive impact on women and families. Mr. Tarek Tayed, counsellor and permanent representative of the Arab Republic of Egypt, pointed out how each of the 17 Sustainable Development Goals, such as poverty, education and gender equality, is more likely to be accomplished when the family is strong. Mr. Tareq Ariful Islam, chargé d'affaires and deputy permanent representative of the People's Republic of Bangladesh, reminded us that the family is the essential educator, caregiver, and economic provider, especially for children, the elderly, and the disabled. He added that Bangladesh has been able to address the threat of radicalization through the influence of the family.

Ms. Valerie Huber, senior policy advisor at the Office of Global Affairs at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, spoke. She opened by affirming President Trump's conviction that the family, not the government, provides our most fundamental social stability and is, therefore, the core to future prosperity and well-being. She referred to the decades of research that confirms that the healthy family promotes optimal physical, emotional, spiritual, and social health for all its members. Monsignor Tomasz Grysa, first counsellor and deputy permanent observer of the Holy See, commented that as God created male and female in the image of God, marriage and the family are the natural environments for the experience of love. The family is closely related to peace, he said, because in our familial relations we learn to respect every person and become builders of peace. Msgr. Grysa added that life without love is senseless but life with the experience of familial love will expand to goodness and love given out to the world. He stated that the past 50 years of family degradation leading to increased poverty, dependence on government welfare, single motherhood, etc., must be met with 50 years dedicated to restoring the centrality of parenting and strengthening the family. As an unusual musical interlude, five young women performed enchanting harp selections together. The next panel session was composed of speakers from civil society. Christine Vollmer, the president of Alliance for the Family, from Venezuela, related how she addressed a rapid increase of violence, drugs, irresponsible sexual behaviour, and aimlessness in Venezuelan youth by developing a family-based character and relationship education program, "Alive to the World." She reported that this integrated approach to youth education has brought about an increase in healthy decision-making among youth and improved parent-child connections in many countries in Latin America. Mr. Errol Naidoo, the founder and CEO of Family Policy Institute, spoke about the breakdown of family, high rate of single motherhood, and floundering of youth in South Africa. He attributed much of the social decline and dilemmas in that nation to the weakening of the family. Mr. Naidoo encouraged us by saying that policies that focus on the family can bring a substantial turnaround in social stability. Michael Hanby, a PhD at the John Paul Institute for Marriage and Family at Catholic University of America and an associate professor of religion and philosophy of science, reflected on the previously "unimaginable" phenomena brought about by the combined sexual and technological revolutions. He remarked that the current fluid concepts about marriage, male/female indistinguishability, gender identity, and reproductive and sexual rights have led to abuses such as human womb trafficking, children with no knowledge of their biological parentage, and arbitrary destruction of frozen human embryos. Dr. Hanby noted that today we see a redefinition of human nature itself. At the same time, he said, the control of fundamental decisions about children's and Third Blessing which has come to mean coveting the physical world, controlling and dominating it, and 'storing up treasure on earth'. The physical world, materialism, mammon, gluttony, lust etc, became a poor substitute for God's love after the Fall. That is why Jesus said, "Seek first God's Kingdom, and 'all these things' will be added unto you". God's Kingdom is foremostly the first two blessings, then followed by the third. God's Kingdom is individual perfection, then marriage and family. That is where the Kingdom first begins, not with some nation having vast wealth and resources. That is why Jesus also said, 'the Kingdom of Heaven is amid you', in your heart, and in your relationships. Cain was the older brother, and he was dealing with Satan. Abel the younger brother was dealing with God, due to the order of the Fall. Therefore, God could accept Abel's offering, but not Cain's, due to the position each brother stood in, not the 'quality or type' of offering made. The younger brother having received God's Blessing should have gone to his older brother and comforted and supported him, and helped the older brother make his offering to God. That could have been accomplished in various ways, but suffice to say, they needed to co-operate. Cain also had the responsibility to control his feelings of resentment and anger, 'Sin is couching at your door and you must master it'. Ultimately Abel didn't support his brother, and therefore Cain overcome by his resentment and anger killed Abel. Had they united, God would have been able to lay the foundation for the Messiah to come at that time, as the foundation for having overcome Satan's rebellion against God, and Satan spiritually killing Adam. By virtue of Cain killing Abel physically, he was repeating the Fall. Fast forward to Jacob and Esau, this being the historical parallel for the Cain and Abel situation. Jacob the younger brother, Esau the older, Jacob was able to gain the birthright and the Blessing from his Father instead of Esau the older brother. The birthright should go to the older son.

Again, like Cain, Esau wanted to kill Jacob, so Jacob's mother Rebekah helped him to escape and he went to Haran and lived with his Uncle Laban. After 21 years of drudgery, betrayal, and hard work, Jacob was able to secure a veritable fortune under Laban, and return to his homeland. (Your own life and Presidency mirrors Jacob's course) On approaching his homeland, Esau having heard of his brother's return, assembled an army of 400 men, and set out to kill him. Jacob having suffered for those 21 years came to know the heart of God, and had gained great faith and wisdom. Jacob sent forth servants with livestock as gifts for Esau, and he himself bowed down seven times before his brother. Esau's heart was deeply moved and he rushed forward and embraced Jacob, securing the foundation of sibling unity, which represented the unity of Cain and Abel. Therefore, Esau overcame Lucifer's desire to 'kill' Adam, and Cain actually killing Abel, so that on this foundation God could then prepare to send the Messiah. However, God could no longer send the Messiah to just a family level foundation, he needed a nation, as Egypt and other nations had risen up that would quickly kill the Messiah on a family level foundation alone. A nation was needed to protect the Messiah, and also accept and follow him. This is how God's work throughout history has also advanced with many wars and battles, including WW1 and WW2 to separate man from Satan's side, and establish a righteous people to receive the Lord of the Second Advent, hence also '1776' and America's founding. Satan has continually worked, as he is doing today, now through the Globalists, to destroy that foundation, that people, and the Messiah himself. That is Satan's agenda, the same agenda as when he deceived Adam and Eve in the garden with a lie; today's media propaganda, inversion of truth, moral relativity, gender distortion, cultural Marxism. This is Satan's complete arsenal of lies and false flags coming to the fore, so that he can reign supreme, killing the heir and successor. That is where we are today. America must become the heir and successor of God's birthright, and follow Jacob's course. America is in the position of Abel, and Russia, Cain. Remember, these are providential positions, 'representing' relatively the sides of 'good and evil'. Cain was still God's son as Abel was, but Cain was put in the position to deal with Satan, and Abel God, similarly so for Russia and America. Both are essentially Christian nations, both seeking their own autonomy, independence, national identity, and prosperity. God is wanting to bring these two countries together as 'brother nations' through President Donald Trump. This would be the brothers Cain and Abel, uniting together in heart, working together, making that heartfelt unity that would uplift the world, liberating people from oppression and tyranny as the model and prototype for that. "Love your enemies." Luke 6:27-36. This is the natural subjugation of Satan. This will generate untold prosperity for everyone, as would have been the case in Adam's family had they not fallen. God's love and blessings would have multiplied throughout the world, based on that ideal family, and those ideal relationships. This would restore on the world-wide level the division between Cain and Abel, and the Archangel attacking Adam and Eve in the Garden, that also being, God's Ideal, the Kingdom of Heaven. President Trump, you must go beyond all this running interference that began with the 'Russian Collusion' lie, and now the many other things they are throwing at you. You have to virtually ignore them and go for the 'prize' of meeting with President Putin and uniting these two brother nations to accomplish God's Will and go to the next level. This will dramatically change the balance of power in the world to God's side, and then other nations will automatically begin to fall into line as those nations that have been allied with either Russia or America see the 'wind shift', and the huge blessings and prosperity that are coming both spiritually and physically. President Trump and President Putin must come together, and work for the liberation of humankind. In that unity will come God's 'super-blessing' for everyone, following 'the fishes and loaves' paradigm. The unity of our hearts drives true prosperity and economic success. This will open up the way for limitless energy for the world, and vast resources to house, feed, and take care of everyone. America and Russia can build the Bering Strait Bridge/Tunnel to externally and internally unite the people of the world. When humanity works together and there is no longer war and conflict, the end result will be beyond our wildest imaginings. Accomplish this President Trump, and we will see incredible changes taking place throughout the world, and among God's children. As God is working with you and has been spiritually preparing you, Amos 3:7, these ideas will be caught by your heart, as seeds fall into fertile fields and bear great harvest. God's blessings are poised to pour down upon the face of the earth. As you stated, "I want victory for the world". May 9, 2018. As in, "For God so loved the world". Jn 3:16. This will be the substantial implementation of God's Ideal and His Kingdom. God bless and guide you! Most sincerely, Stephen Downward women's rights, human life, and social responsibilities has slipped away from the state into the hands of bureaucratic and commercial technology. Dr. Joseph Price, an associate professor in the Department of Economics, Brigham Young University, discussed the impact of marriage on the economy. He referred to recent research indicating that a 1 percent increase in marriage brings about a 6 percent increase in GDP. He added that it costs governments $43,000 to replace the family and that the states with higher rates of marriage had higher GDP. He stated, "Higher levels of marriage are strongly correlated with greater levels of upward economic mobility, lower levels of child poverty, and higher median family income." Dr. Price explained that even though cohabitation has increased around the world, these unions lead to reduced emotional and economic stability. Despite Sweden's wide acceptance of cohabitation, the breakup rate within five years is 79 percent for cohabitants, throwing children into emotional and financial uncertainty. For the final segment, 12 UN NGOs gave three-minute statements to the audience. Statements were given by the two organizing NGOs: The Centre for Family and Human Rights, and Family Watch International. Some of the other organizations that gave statements were the Heritage Foundation, International Organization for the Family, United Family International, and the Universal Peace Federation. The UPF statement, given by Lynn Walsh, emphasized research affirming that married biological mothers and fathers provide their children with the greatest benefits on every level of well-being. Mrs. Walsh made a more personal reflection as an adoptive parent with her husband. She said, "Adoptive parents can be wonderful substitutes, but it is not the ideal. My husband and I adopted two wonderful boys, now loving, successful young men. But I know from experience that no child should ever have to wonder about the biological roots of their identity, if at all avoidable." The International Day of Families anniversary commemoration was without a doubt highly successful. Special appreciation should be given to the UN Group of the Friends of the Family, the Centre for Family and Human Rights, and Family Watch International for organizing the program. Such collaboration brought unity, new resources, inspiration and surely will bring future accomplishments around the world for the sake of the family.
