On June 5, 2021, in honor of National Trails Day, Shine City Project volunteered with Get Outdoors Nevada at Floyd Lamb Park! Located in Tule Springs in northwest Las Vegas, Floyd Lamb Park features several ponds, one of which is regularly stocked with fish throughout the year by the Nevada Department of Wildlife. With bluegill, sunfish, bass, and even rainbow trout, catfish, and others, each of the ponds are the perfect place for fishermen! In addition to fishing, Floyd Lamb Park is great for picnics, barbecues, walks on the trails, as well as volleyball and horseshoes! Not only that, Floyd Lamb Park is a lively park that is filled with wild ducks, geese, and peacocks! Additionally, Tule Springs, where Floyd Lamb Park is found, is an area that is rich with history, starting from millions of years ago!

On this morning, our Shine City Project volunteers met with Get Outdoors Nevada to help clean up Floyd Lamb Park! We had nine volunteers representing Shine City Project - four which came from the Yasui family! Although the park was already well-maintained, our volunteers helped to pick up not only macro-trash, but micro-trash as well - cigarette butts, pieces of confetti, bottle caps, and other small pieces of litter. In the end, with the help of all the volunteers who were present, including Shine City Project, 88 pounds of trash was collected! Overall, our volunteers enjoyed being at the park and we hope to visit again this oasis in the desert!
