North Korea’s “coercion choreography” seeks to create and exploit extreme shifts in the geopolitical situation to its diplomatic advantage. Apocalyptic threats alternate with ephemeral diplomatic advances while their nuclear and missile programs continue unabated. The challenge we face with North Korea is avoiding such extremes, while keeping a laser focus on reversing North Korea’s growing nuclear threat. Solving the Korean Peninsula impasse requires policy, military and diplomatic creativity.

Join Syd Seiler, a four-decades senior policymaker, negotiator and intelligence officer on the Korean Peninsula, along with Ambassador Joseph DeTrani, former U.S. envoy to the six-party talks and Dr. Alexandre Mansourov, professor of security studies at Georgetown, as they discuss the hair-trigger geopolitical flashpoint that is the Korean Peninsula.
