2019 ANNUAL MEETING REPORT

3RD – 5TH MAY 2019

- MADRID -

WRITTEN BY INOË ANDRÉ

OVERVIEW

This year's annual Cranes Club conference was held on March 3rd – 5th, at Espacio Ronda in Madrid and was attended by some twenty five professionals from across Europe (including a guest from the USA). The event was the smallest group in the last 4 years, owing to national days surrounding the weekend, the late announcement of the event and the location which is fully booked months before and is far away from many European countries. This not only understandably takes precedence for many with limited funds, but also resulted in the Directors scheduling the event a month later than usual. All things considered, our weekend of guest speakers, networking sessions, mini workshops, and socializing proved impactful, with participants rating the overall success of the event 7.83 out of 10 and willing to support Cranes Club.

Some of the highlights of the conference included a variety of interesting and thought-provoking breakout sessions and inspiring keynote speeches. The annual general meeting saw the departure of three of the 2018 directors, F. C., Antto Hassinen and Romica Spiegl-Jones, the re-election of Inoë André and Ely Loew, as well as the welcoming of three new board members, Veronica Dostilio, Ceri Jones and Samuel Muruzábal (see below for more information about the 2019 Board of Directors). With this comes the exciting beginning of a new year, new goals and progress towards building a vibrant community of professionals from a Unificationist background. We look forward to you joining us in the year ahead!

MAIN PROGRAM

On the first evening of the program, participants were welcomed by an opening address from the director of Espacio Ronda, Armando Lozano, who shared some insights into managing a gallery and concert space as well as the artists themselves. Following this a director of Cranes Club, Ely Loew, explained with full transparency the situation that Cranes Club faced in 2018. In fact, nothing really impactful could be reported as directors lacked time and volunteers to organize conferences. There was then a public speaking practice session of sorts where attendees introduced themselves in order to break the ice. During this there was some positive and valuable feedback about Cranes Club shared.

Welcoming address by Armando
- director of Espacio Ronda -

The main program took place on the Saturday and began with three inspiring keynote addresses. The first was given by Yves Champollion, founder of wordfast. He shared the basic idea that brought to life his added value in the professional translation world and how his software could become the second most used in the industry of translation. Then, Miguel Calvis Calpe, director of finances and human resources in Tongil Group, explained how the company would sustain its business through selling healthy and natural product. This was followed by the valuable presentation of Rodrigo Lopez, representative of Loyverse. Loyverse has a Point of Sale application that help merchant and shopkeepers to improve their sells by managing orders, stock and supplies more efficiently. Rodrigo could clearly show that the growth of Loyverse is promising.

After the keynote addresses there were networking sessions split into smaller groups by area of interest, which included: business and finance, entrepreneurship and general networking. During this time participants could share about their personal interests and experiences of the professional environment, having the opportunity to meet new people, build connections, and have passionate discussions on topical issues.

In the afternoon, participants joined 2 breakout sessions out of 3 that included workshops and presentations on the following themes: finding spirituality in finance (Chris and Ceri Jones); building a strong team culture (Jonathan Jesper), building a business from scratch (Yves Champollion). More information about each of the speakers and their sessions can be found below.

The main part of the program concluded with a social evening that included an atmospheric dinner with many opportunities for cosy conversations. During the fireside talk Geros Kunkel offered a personal testimony about his experience as an older second generation Unificationist, finding meaning in his marriage, being a husband, a father, how to pass from being a part of the ESGD team to start a regular work, and still finding time for faith and hobbies.

The evening culminated in a concierto de shakuhachi an open cultural event held in Espacio Ronda.

ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING

A number of Cranes Club members who could not attend, were still able to join in virtually alongside all the other participants on Sunday morning during the Annual General Meeting. During the session, there was a reminder of the Cranes Club constitution and the nomination of the 2018 directors. In addition to this, membership also voted on the allocation of the second Cranes Club Europe grant (€1000 and €500). The €1000 grant was awarded to a charity project however it was made clear that this was not for the charity itself but for the entrepreneurial spirit that the applicants showed by making this project a reality (click this link to see a video from last year project). Thus it was agreed the project would receive the full €1000 however half of the grant was given as a loan. The other grant of €500 was kept for next year.

As well as some discussion about how to resolve the lack of time of directors issues and finances, it was determined directors could hire an administrative manager for 100 hours at €15 per hour. Also, directors should find some ambassadors that will promote cranes club in local communities in an effort to help promote and grow the Cranes Club network. Some suggestions were made concerning the aims of the 2018 Directors; these will be decided in the coming month

Shortly after I got to know about Loyverse project and, inspired by the vision of creating a business culture based on True Parents philosophy, I decided to be part of it. From the very beginning I got involved in customer support, marketing, SEO and social media activities, which helped me to quickly gain practical skills and become knowledgeable in the entrepreneurial field.

I'm grateful for the opportunity to participate in the cranes club for the first time and be able to share our experiences and results. I'm also expecting to listen and learn from others' and together find ways of how to apply the Principle in all aspects of our life.
