President's Corner: When You Feel Like Giving Up

This week things have not gone the way I wanted. In many ways it felt like the universe was working against me and every step forward was met with a major punch in the gut. I was riding the waves of hope and expectation and then crashing back on the shore. Have you ever felt that way?

We Hope to See You at the In-Person Awaken Retreat!

The Awaken Retreat is designed to provide a nurturing space where women can explore their inner strengths, develop a deeper understanding of their unique value, and connect with other like-minded individuals. Through a series of interactive workshops, enlightening keynote speeches, and introspective activities, participants will be guided on a journey of self-discovery and empowerment.

Summer is Here and the Schools of Africa Continues to Impact Lives

According to UNESCO, "sub-Saharan Africa has the highest rates of education exclusion." One-fifth of children between 6 and 11 are not attending school and that increases significantly as children age. A whopping one-third of students between 12 and 14 are not in school. (Source) Since education is crucial for individuals and families to create a brighter future for themselves, it's so important to keep the Schools of Africa Project strong and stable!

RECENT HAPPENINGS

Check out what WFWP USA has been up to!

Painting with a Purpose: Art and Mental Health Activity in New Jersey

On June 8, the WFWP chapter in New Jersey initiated a program for the community to access the arts: Painting with a Purpose. The purpose was relaxing time together, delicious food, engaging conversations, and each person brought home a beautiful creation of their own, a beach scene suitable for summer.
