Community Garden Presentation

Dear Brothers & Sisters,

We are excited to announce that Gregg Jones will be joining us this Sunday, 2/26, to present and speak about the topic "Community Garden" after service from 12pm to 1pm. We invite you to come and learn more about the importance of community gardens and how they can benefit both individuals and the wider community.

Growing up close to nature, Gregg appreciated and loved the natural world from a young age. He received his undergraduate degree in Biology from the University of Maryland, College Park and then worked at the University's Horn Point Environmental Lab in Cambridge, MD. He was also employed at the Johns Hopkins Applied Physic Lab in Maryland. Gregg earned a Masters of Divinity Degree from Unification Theological Seminary, and has served in numerous ministerial positions. He is married and the father of 6 beautiful children.

Currently, Gregg is serving as the Outreach Director for an environmental nonprofit called The Hyo Jeong International Foundation for the Unity of the Sciences. Through his experience and expertise, Gregg will provide valuable insights on the importance of community gardens in creating a more sustainable and connected world.

We look forward to seeing you at the service this Sunday and to hearing from Gregg.

Thank you.

Outreach Director, HJIFUS
