

Visiting Syrian Refugee Families

Hermine Schellen
July 20, 2014

There are no words to express the misery and agony so many Syrian Refugees have to endure now, its beyond words. At times when I came back from visiting those Families, I could not hold back my tears. When I look at the faces of those Refugees, I don't think about their Nationality, Religion etc. They are first fellow human beings, who deserve just like any human, to live in peace and dignity.

