Happy Summer!

As we approach the July 4th holiday, it's a good time to think about where our country is now versus 240 years ago at our Independence.

What values or principles was America based on?
What principles do we want America to be known for?

We have some input from our elder brother, Hyo Jin Nim:

"The most important thing for us to learn as college students is how to demonstrate God's love and universal values in our daily lives. The campus community is a great place to start, because it contains such a wealth of creativity and idealism. Students have the potential to be the vanguard, bringing positive solutions to the problems of mankind. The youth of every era have been the hope of their generation.

The American patriot, Nathan Hale, was only 21 years old when he inspired his countrymen with these last words: 'I regret that I have but one life to give for my country:' But today we cannot be satisfied with the progress of a single nation or people. Our challenge is to unite all races, nations and religions to establish a truly peaceful world."
