

HJ International Graduate School for Peace and Public Leadership: Research Day

Thomas G. Walsh
May 13, 2024

HJ International GRADUATE SCHOOL for PEACE and PUBLIC LEADERSHIP

Building Effectiveness in Ministry and Public Leadership

HJI AS A HOME OF THOUGHT PRESENTS
ANNUAL RESEARCH DAY 2024
Student, Faculty and Alumni Presentations

Name: Avo Martinson
Project Title: Reforming the United Nations Security Council

Research Question: What are the possible ways to reform the Security Council?

Methodology and/or Research Methods used: Literature Review and Analysis of media coverage.

Findings: Amendment of Charter; 12 world regions; Improving working methods; Creating Interregional Council.

Conclusions and/or proposed next steps: Solution lies not just in reforms but in upholding its Charter articles, (Ch. V, Art 24; Ch. VI, Art 33).

Major sources: Paul M. Kennedy, 'The Unravelling of Historical Domination to Reveal the Original Domination'.

Planned publications: Research Day competition.

Acknowledgements: I would like to thank professor Dr. Thomas G. Walsh for teaching about The UN Security Council.

Heremeticism as an Open, Dialogical Platform for Competing "Trust Vocabulary" of Religious Communities: Katarina Nock

Introduction: Heremeticism is a complex phenomenon that has been studied in various contexts, including religious communities, social movements, and digital spaces. This research explores the role of heremeticism in the formation of a "trust vocabulary" within religious communities, focusing on the interplay between digital and physical spaces.

Methodology: This research employs a mixed-methods approach, combining qualitative interviews with quantitative data analysis of digital communication patterns.

Findings: The study reveals that heremeticism functions as a dialogical platform, allowing for the negotiation and contestation of trust within religious communities. Digital spaces facilitate the spread of competing "trust vocabularies," which are shaped by hermetic practices and digital communication.

Conclusions: Heremeticism is not a static or isolated phenomenon but a dynamic and dialogical process that shapes trust within religious communities. The interplay between digital and physical spaces is crucial in understanding this process.

Name: Drissa Kone
Project Title: Toward a Unification Theory of Peace and Conflict

Introduction: In the past decade, a new known as An Integrative Theory of Peace and conflict has been proposed. It defines unity as the main principle governing all human relationships, organizations, and groups. This theory could be the basis for a unification theory of peace and conflict.

Research question: Is an integrative-eclectic theory of peace and conflict the basis for a unification theory of peace and conflict?

Methodology: Theory draws from the existing body of research on issues of psychological development and peace education, developmental approach to conflict resolution.

Conclusions: Integrative theory of peace holds that conflict is the absence of unity and both conflict resolution and peace creation are only possible in the context of a unity-based worldview. Leading toward a unification theory of peace and conflict.

Publications or planned publications resulting from research: Research is still to be conducted.

Findings from research: Lessons learned, and observations made during seven years of implementation of the Education for Peace Program in 112 schools in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Major sources: Driss Kone, 'Heremeticism: A New Vocabulary for the 21st Century' in Peace Education: International Perspectives on Research and Practice, edited by Thomas G. Walsh, published by HJI International Graduate School for Peace and Public Leadership, 2023.

The Unravelling of Historical Domination to Reveal the Original Domination

Introduction: This research explores the concept of historical domination and its impact on the present. It argues that the current world order is a result of historical domination, which has led to the marginalization of many groups and nations. The research aims to uncover the original domination and its impact on the present.

Methodology: The research uses a historical and critical approach to analyze the impact of historical domination on the present. It involves a detailed analysis of historical events and their impact on the present.

Conclusions: The research concludes that historical domination is a key factor in the current world order. It argues that the current world order is a result of historical domination, which has led to the marginalization of many groups and nations. The research calls for a new world order that is based on justice and equity.

Publications or planned publications resulting from research: Research is still to be conducted.

Please note: The featured posters are sample submissions. Winners will be announced during the program.

Join us as we honor this year's Research Day winners

Tuesday, May 14 • 7 pm ET

HJ International Graduate School for Peace and Public Leadership is happy to invite you to attend its 3rd Annual Research Day on May 14, 2024 at 7 PM ET via Zoom.

All registered participants will have the opportunity to learn more about the research undertaken at HJI by students, faculty, and alumni. A select panel of judges will

We encourage all members of the HJI community to join the program to support this year's contestants.

CLICK HERE to view the 2024 contestants' posters.

Register Here

3rd Annual Research Day

Date & Time May 14, 2024 05:00 PM in
Mountain Time (US and Canada)

Meeting Registration

First Name*

Last Name*

Email Address*

Information you provide when registering will be shared with the account owner and host and can be used and shared by them in accordance with their Terms and Privacy Policy.

Register

