Diving into Principle Pt III! Rev. Nakamura and Rev. Kachi continued their lectures for Day 2 of the two day workshop. Despite hearing different content, all participants could inherit something that applies to their own life of faith.

"I really liked the point from Rev. Nakamura that if you are grateful, Satan cannot get to you. I believe that being grateful truly is the most important thing because it really helps to have a positive mindset and to appreciate what you have." – Masahiro A

"My highlight about the lecture from Rev. Kachi was when Father Moon testified about Principle strongly to Kim Il Sung's top general without caring whether or not he would meet Kim Il Sung. In the end, he was able to meet Kim Il Sung. Because of that, I had more conviction in Principle. The North Korean government told Father their ideology, and he still pointed out all the wrong points even at the risk of his life. Everyone was shocked. Father Moon's conviction allowed God to work. If we come in with our own thinking, we may think that we need to change the truth so it will be accepted, but Father didn't have that mindset. As a CARP leader, I suffer from compromising a lot. When that happens, I miss out on the opportunities to connect to people because I water down the information. If I decide to change Principle so someone can accept it, I block God from being able to work. That stood out to me the most because I am planning my future position in CARP. I don't want to compromise the message that comes from God." – Ori R

We closed the day with a special concert from the Hyo Jin Moon band. It uplifted the spirits and connected us to Hyo Jin Moon, the first son of Father and Mother Moon. Hyo Jin Moon's philosophy centered around love and filial heart toward parents. By inheriting that tradition through his music, we were better able to understand the content we gained throughout the day.
