BREAKING: Temporary Suspension of Detention for True Mother

By Rev. Demian Dunkley

A Korean court has granted a temporary suspension of detention for Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon — the Mother of Peace —effective immediately and valid until 16:00 (KST) on November 7, 2025.

Seoul - Tuesday Evening, November 4, 2025. Footage of Dr. Han leaving the detention center on her way to an undisclosed medical facility.

According to the official notice, her residence is restricted to within a designated hospital's premises, and she may only meet medical staff or registered attorneys. The name of the hospital has been redacted, but it appears to be within the detention center campus itself.

Reports suggest the treatment is related to her eyesight. While it is right that she receive medical care, this decision reflects procedure more than compassion — and it is concerning how long it took for even this limited measure to be approved.

The conditions remain unusually harsh. The order warns that she may still be summoned for interrogation, and that she must not flee or “destroy evidence.” Such restrictions placed on an 82-year-old woman of peace reveal the absurdity of this situation. She is there because she needs care, not surveillance.

She is there because she needs care,
not surveillance.

FAITH • FREEDOM • PEACE

Even so, we hope these brief days will allow her to see daylight, breathe fresh air, and feel Heaven’s presence with her.

This is not freedom. But it is a moment of pause — a chance for those with authority to remember her humanity, and for all of us to pray that light continues to break through.

Faith is not a crime. Fear should never be policy.

Unofficial Translation of Court Document

From the Criminal Affairs Spokesperson's Pool

Main points of the court's decision to suspend the execution of detention in Case No. 2025-Gohap-1380 (Defendant: Han, Hak *):

- The execution of detention is suspended until 16:00 on November 7, 2025. However, the defendant's place of residence is restricted to within the premises of [name-redacted] Hospital.
- Upon release, the defendant must faithfully comply with the following designated conditions. If any of these are violated, the suspension of detention may be revoked.
  1. The defendant's residence is limited to within the premises of [name-redacted] Hospital.
  2. During the suspension period, the defendant may not contact or communicate with anyone other than medical personnel of [name-redacted] Hospital and attorneys wearing their identification badges, and must not discuss or make contact concerning this case.
  3. The defendant must not flee or destroy evidence.
  4. During the suspension period, if the defendant is summoned, she must appear at the specified time and place. If there is a legitimate reason for being unable to appear, she must notify the court in advance, specifying the reason.
