Dear members in Northern Virginia,

This is an URGENT REMINDER:

Since we are moving on 4/19 (Friday) and 4/20(Saturday), we don't have internet service. We have asked our KEA Pastor, Rev. Jang, to host the 21-day 7:30 p.m. prayer condition Zoom meeting this weekend.

As soon as we connect to an internet service, we will go back to the original Zoom link.

Thank you!

HYO JEONG AWAKENINGS

April 10, 2024 – Week 3 of 6

God creates using a circular principle that allows all creatures to exist and have permanence. But human beings disturbed this principle, resulting in God's beautiful earth suffering from fatigue as it does today. Also, human history has been one of unending war. Those who have, fight to gain more.... All creatures are made sick by people filled with such egoism and selfish thoughts. We must act in harmony with God's original dream for our planet. We would be free of pollution today if we followed God's circular principle and the orderly flow in nature by which God created.

—Dr. Hak Ja Han Moon, February 4, 2017, ICUS XXIII, Seoul, Korea

The fundamental order of the universe is based on the principle of existing for the sake of the other. The creation's ideal, as well as the hope of human beings, is a world of true ideals, true love and true peace. Therefore, the principle of living for the sake of others is the starting point of God's ideal, and for all happiness and love. When looking at the universe, we can see that nothing exists for its own sake. The animal world exists for the plant world; the mineral world and plant world exist for the animal world; and all of these together exist for human beings. Then for whom do human beings exist? We exist for God. Yet God too exists for all things, since He made them and is the source of their growth and development.

—Rev. Dr. Sun Myung Moon, December 11, 1985, Welcoming Banquet, Hilton Hotel, Seoul, Korea

The Earth&I E&I

To protect, preserve, and restore our planet, we need to make a conscious change in our attitude toward nature and apply the best environmental practices. See what The Institute for Earth Education in Greenville, WV, is doing to educate people of all ages here, and how the TreeKeepers program in Baltimore, MD, is making a positive impact on the community through resilient management of trees here. Greetings to you!

We appreciate all of our local congregations' efforts to be friends of the earth. We cordially invite you to attend an Environmental Summit in Gambrills, Maryland, on Saturday, June 15, 2024, in observance of UN World Environment Day.

We are greatly concerned about the magnitude of today's environmental challenges, including the serious decline of soil health and wildlife biodiversity, and their impact on human life. Perhaps the greatest contributing factor is the public's limited understanding of these problems and what to do about them. In response, we are bringing to our DMV community two eminent scientists who will address the theme, "Rejuvenating Our Ecosystems."
