

Do Dreams Come True?

I am so happy and grateful now that money flows to me with grace, ease and joy.

This is the affirmation we are doing since the Golden Goddess Circle meeting on Monday 8th. Joy Martina invited a financial advisor to speak to us about women and money. This has been my theme the last couple of years after retiring from my job at the UN.

Do Dreams Come True?

Apparently today is the new moon and it was the window of opportunity to discard all old things of the past to make a new beginning in this new age of Aquarius.

Do you feel the spirit?

I've been so busy editing the WFWP Curriculum, supporting the VIC Toastmasters and doing my YouTube challenge. I did read through the short volume of the treatise From Father God to Parent God. I am humbled that my critical eye is appreciated in the assessment and polishing of the translation. The modern AI translation tools are so effective - it makes so much more possible!

New YouTube Channel

Now I have finally produced my first video for my new YouTube channel in my own name. And guess what? I decided to thematize it to Dream Job UN. Here I am writing in my private blog. I've started a new YouTube Channel in my own name. And I'm talking about women and appropriate remuneration.

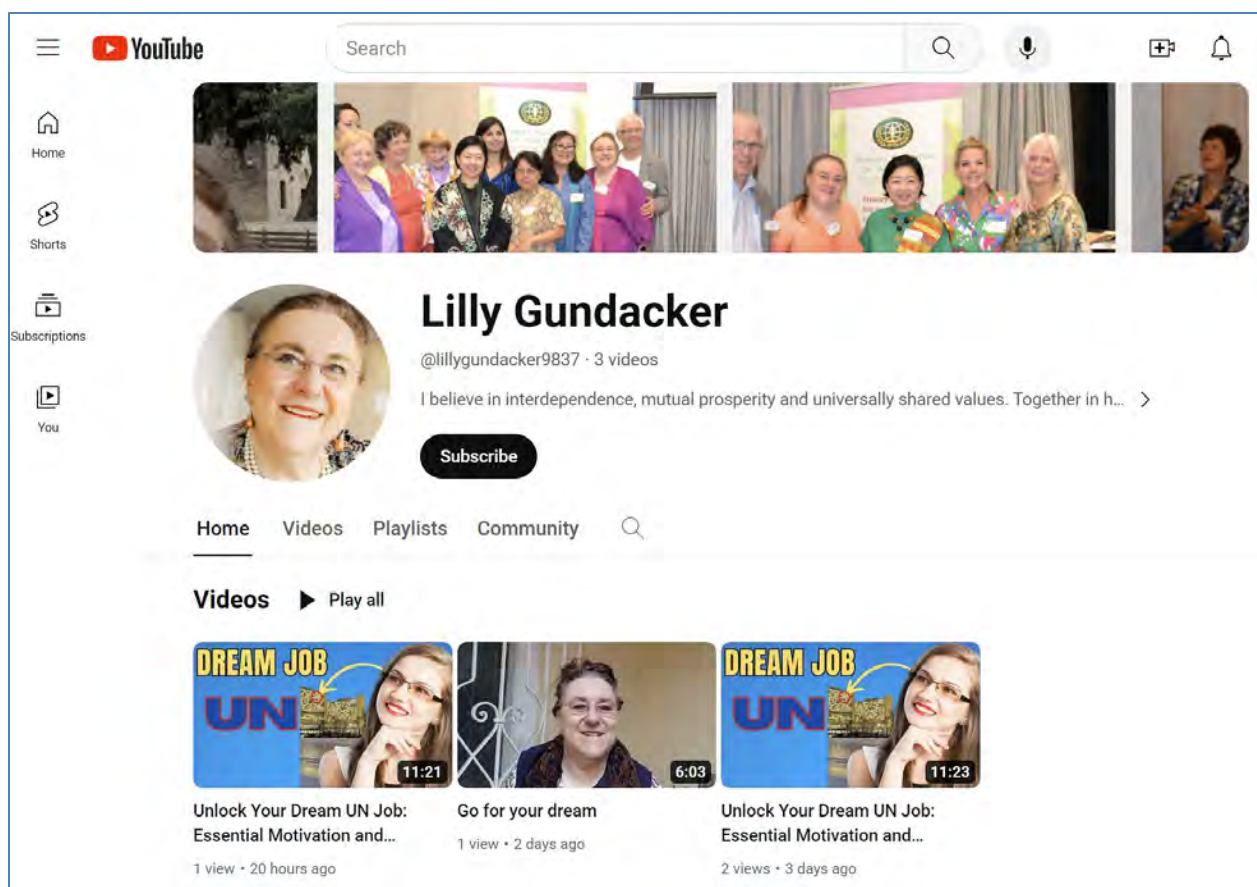

I just love the formatting and proof-reading aspects of putting the curriculum together. I would appreciate a bit more team-work and internal communication. However, the whole structure of this NGO is so broad, and I am grateful for the growth opportunities it offers me.

Voluntary Projects

My proposal for a paid administrative officer on the European level a year ago was met with total astonishment and disbelief. These good women who are saving the world and their families do not believe or think about the option to engage a professional fundraiser to manage "business" to move to the next level.

Thank God that I was led to some high level mentoring a few years ago. Now I am the mentor for these idealist women. Provided I knuckle down and decide to do it.

Do you know the feeling when God is calling you to do something, and you just think you can't do it? Yet all of my circles of influence are telling me now, that if you can think of it, you can do it.

Gratitude

So instead of dwelling on what I did not manage to declutter the past three months, I am focussing on being just so grateful for all I have. I can release bit by bit. I have created my YouTube channel. I can develop my webpage. I am writing my blog.

One day I'll get that sales page up and you'll be able to see some of the things I've been doing. Of course, you can always find my Facebook page, my blog and my Dream Job UN website, as well as my Ozlilly YouTube channel. Don't bother about the other channels I set up for WFWP Europe, the VIC Toastmasters Club, Familien Forum Oesterreich, Women In Nuclear IAEA. I am only just now learning a few tricks about YouTubing. All these channels just sprung out of my passion to share the amazing things that these great women are all doing! All I see in them is all that still needs to be done. I'm grateful I could record so much of history and regret that it is not given the honourable stage it deserves. Then of course there are all the other videos which I have not yet dared to publish of all the farewell speeches of my former colleagues.

Yes, it's true, I love being busy. I love being under pressure. But hey. I am retired! I've started taking naps in the afternoon. Mainly because I do not manage to get to bed before ten and often have early morning meetings.

Stay in touch

So, now I've launched my new YouTube Channel. Next step is Call to Action. Sign up for my newsletter. That means I'll be generating a newsletter out of my blog.

Stay in touch. Get connected. Read my blurb.
