On 23 May 2026, WFWP Ireland welcomed participants to Unity House in Dublin for a Botanical Bas-Relief Workshop, offering a creative and reflective way to connect with nature. Through plaster casting of native plants, participants transformed local flora into lasting works of art while learning about the importance of protecting Ireland's biodiversity.

The workshop combined artistic expression with environmental awareness, inspiring conversations about sustainability, ecological stewardship, and personal well-being. Filled with creativity, friendship, and a shared appreciation for nature, the event encouraged everyone to recognize their role in caring for the local environment. As one participant reflected, "There was a wonderful ambience of harmony and beauty... It was an experience beyond imagination."
