

Building an ideal world through oneness or one less

Recently a 2nd gen leader said the last time our movement had a clear goal was when we were facing down worldwide communism, and that we lacked such a clear goal today. The battle has always been between our original and our fallen nature. Communism is fallen nature embodied into politics. The only way the battle will be won is by embodying original nature into all aspects of life.

Original nature is liberated, finally, through the Blessing. Without individuals and families embodying the original way of life, living with Heavenly Parents, there is no foundation for a national or worldwide restoration. The battle is won starting in the heart of the individual and family.

Original nature seeks to add to God's loving family, to seek oneness. Fallen nature tries to build an ideal world by removing people. Oneness versus one less.

As long as we think the enemy is someone else, our efforts will fail. If we can be like our Parents, and see God in others, even our worst enemy, we can increase the realm of heaven and solutions can be found.

A clear awareness of the difference between original and fallen nature can guide us through these confusing times.

Increasing our own original nature in our daily life helps free the world. Fighting evil without overcoming our own fallen nature is like fighting cancer while smoking cigars.

If we can see God in each other, solutions can be found.
