

Mission Weekly Newsletter

This past week, the missionaries gathered in Kansas for a workshop and then have already set off to their respective locations for Winter Mission. Read on to see how the workshop was.

Breakthrough: From Faith to Fulfillment

The members shared their experiences with each other, and a few were able to share their testimonies with the whole program. From talking to people on the frontline while fundraising, to experiencing the heart of service in the community, the missionaries were able to grow their hearts to love others, to see others from God's perspective, and be able to create an impact wherever they went.

They were then assigned new teams and new mission leaders. Through education about understanding God's heart and our responsibility, creation and restoration, and mobilizing the spirit world, each team is setting conditions for a successful winter mission.

Beyond Physical Limitations

How serious are you with the goals you set?

How aligned are you to your central figure?

How strong is your conviction?

The missionaries were tested and assessed themselves mentally and physically through activities such as unity jumping jacks and doing a stronghold. Pushing themselves physically, missionaries were able to recognize and reflect– how much they can do, and how they react when they can't.

This was not just a physical assessment, but an internal reflection of the self through physical actions. How did the members push themselves? What did they do if their cups were poured into their leader's bowl? How does their attitude and behavior during this activity reflect on how they are towards their sense of responsibility and intention for this winter mission?

Visit from Leadership

Next Gen Mission was blessed with the presence of Rev. Demian Dunkley and Rev. David Rendel. For a few hours in the morning, the missionaries were able to listen to Rev. Dunkley as he gave updates about Holy Mother Han. Read more about it through motherofpeace.com.

While heavy, the time with leadership ended on a hopeful note, with some exciting projects going underway.

Winter Mission

New teams, new goals, and renewed determinations.

With a mix of excitement and nervousness, the missionaries are off! Please keep them in your hearts and in your prayers, as they work towards breakthroughs– from faith to fulfillment.
