Mission Weekly Newsletter

Next Gen Mission

What's up family, it's another newsletter! The teams are still on their winter mission and they are making breakthroughs, internally and externally.

They're going to wrap up this condition and meet up next week in Texas, where they'll conclude the condition, and prepare to go home for winter break.

Here's an excerpt of a testimony from K. Kellett, a senior class missionary.

Letter to True Mother,

excerpt from 2nd year missionary Kai Kellet

I prayed before, 'What does it mean if we are one with True Mother miracles can happen?'

I better understand what that means now. Thanks to that determination and internal focus on oneness today, I was able to break my PR. But I feel internally super victorious too: I could own my identity as True Parents' filial son. I can't even say for certain how I broke through, but I think it came down to me in my heart striving for something greater than myself, striving for True Mother.

To help you set an indemnity condition for the world's liberation, to love the people on your behalf, to be proud of my Parents. It's not about feeling, it's about choosing. I now know that that is what you do every day. Even in the situation you are in now, you choose to love. You choose to be grateful. You choose to forgive. And you choose to embrace. This takes effort. Thank you. I know you and Father aren't super-human, but knowing Heavenly Parent's heart as your own, you deliberately choose to do what you do. This takes extraneous effort. Thank you. I will do my best to choose to lighten your load, by choosing to stand with you, to even go ahead and fight for you, and not simply follow. Even though difficult and scary, I'm determined to go deeper, whatever that looks like.

I love you, True Mother. Thank you for everything. Mansei.

If you know someone who is going to be a high school graduate or equivalent, or is looking to go deeper in their character, life of faith, and relationship with God and True Parents, encourage them to look here.

Next Gen Mission is not just a gap-year program; it's a significant time period to dedicate and invest in the greater community, setting an internal foundation to guide them for life.
