Uruguay -- On May 15 every year, the UN International Day of Families is commemorated. The UN General Assembly proclaimed this international day in 1994, taking into account that the family is the central nucleus of any society. The fundamental objective of this commemoration is to create awareness about the fundamental role of families in the education and ethical guidance of children. This date gives us the opportunity to recognize, identify and analyze social, economic and demographic issues that affect the family's development and evolution.

For this reason, UPF-Uruguay held an event to mark this international date on May 15, 2021. It was held jointly with the Uruguay branches of the Family Federation for World Peace and Unification, the Women's Federation for World Peace (WFWP), and the International Association of Youth and Students for Peace.

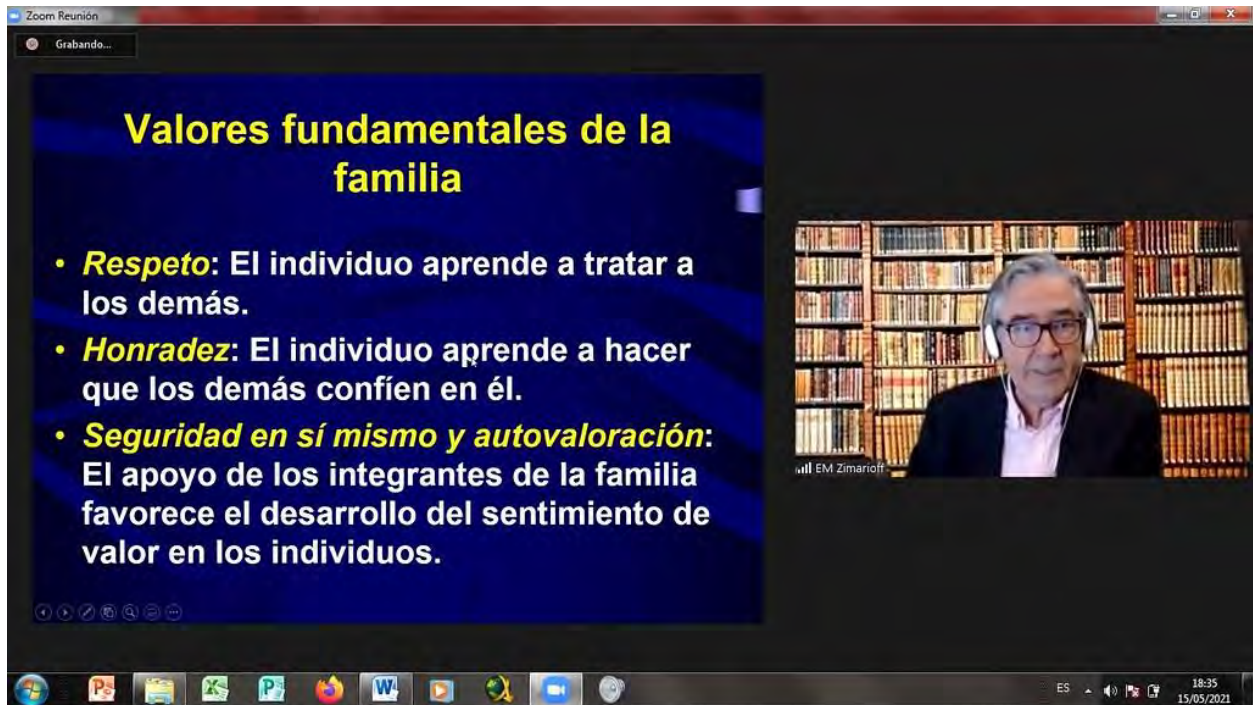

The constitution of the Republic of Uruguay places great importance on the family. In Ch. II, Article 40, it says: "The family is the basis of our society. The State will ensure its moral and material stability, for the better formation of children within society." We organized a webinar conference through the Zoom virtual platform with the objective of reflecting, fostering and encouraging values of love, respect and trust, which strengthen family ties and in this way make an effective contribution to stability and social progress. The online program had 72 participants.
