

I am the creator in my own environment

Daniela Wooton

July 21, 2017

Adam and Eve were in the position of creator in behalf of God. I agree with Christian, what an amazing responsibility. As I pondered the whole lesson that Mary Jane shared given by True Father in 1957, the thought came to mind, what is that? I can't solve every problem or crime or sin in this world, but, I realized, I am the creator in my own environment.

Then I examined my life and where God has led me. He led me straight to True Parents across continents, oceans and I even had to learn another language to read the Divine Principle, my absolute favorite book and guidance in this world. When I look back, my whole life seems to be designed to learn about different things to benefit others. Whatever pain and suffering was and is involved in that I have embraced as a blessing.

When we moved to the KY mountains, I felt as if I was coming home to my own garden of Eden. As a family we had made conditions to dedicate this place solely to God and His Will. No, not everything worked out. The saddest happening was, that my Blessing, I worked so hard for, ended up in shambles. It is difficult to describe the devastation I felt for having failed at the most important task to my Father in heaven.

As time went on, I met a beautiful soul on this earth and experienced the most wonderful, fulfilling love. But after three years all I could do is be there for him, pray, love and guide him to spirit world. Our last days together were some of the most painful and beautiful I know. I also felt I paid the indemnity necessary for my broken Blessing.

Though I had dedicated much of my life before that to creation and it's wonders, especially in the herbal realm, I renewed my efforts to know God and Spirit World.

We have no central air or heat in our home. This year I even eliminated the window air conditioner, because I wanted to experience the summer just the way God created it. Though I have some of my children home at times and visitors and offer the comforts of it, they all have declined and are going with it. It gets hot and humid here, yet we all seem to cope with it just fine!

Getting wood at low to no cost, means you've got to get out there yourself, cut it, load it, unload it and split it. Over the years I had so much help with that. We just started again and we labored and sweated so much, that I bet we got an extra couple of years to our lives due to the cardiovascular activity, lol. The odd thing is, that even in the winter time we spend most of our free time on the porch, all bundled up, because it is our church! Sometimes I feel our porch is alive with the Divine Principle. Our home is big and 60 degrees in the winter is toasty to us. One thing I noticed though, is, that we are seldom sick.

The cold used to immobilize me, until one year I made the resolve to embrace it. Funny thing, that year we had a mild winter, God does love me, lol. Ever since then I enjoy the cold as I do the heat.

I care for a multitude of animals, most of them rescued. Others might walk out there and they'll never react, but if I step out, they are all at my heels. It isn't just the food, they know who their master is. Even visiting dogs after a couple of days, follow me rather than their owners, yes, that can get a bit testy! Animals know a true heart that cares for them and to receive their appreciation and loyalty is an amazing thing.

Due to allergies to pharmaceuticals of just about any kind, except for aspirin, I had to find alternatives and found my love for herbs. Moving into a micro climate was a blessing that I share with everyone and give it freely.. The incredible vastness of herbs that are at our disposal here has given me the gift to help many with the knowledge I found, studied and give according to God's will to keep us healthy and balanced in mind and body.

A year ago I quit my job and decided to live by needs not wants. I decided to spend the next fifty years of my life as a tool and helper to God, rather than satisfy my own wants in the secular world. Since then, the complete liberation of my ancestry has been completed. There is a peace in my heart, I know will never leave me, I have found that vertical connection, where Heavenly Parent calls me a true daughter. The amazing thing that just happened recently is, that the complete liberation of my children's Father's ancestry is also in the making.

Our home has become a haven for many to find peace, solace and an ear to listen and all leave with a lighter heart and hope and purpose for their life.

Without the True Family and the teachings of the Divine Principle, which I have read over and over again and shared it by reading it out loud to many liberated spirits, I would have never become the proud human being I am now. I have become a keeper of creation, and God and spirit world is supporting me every step of the way.

I created a piece of heaven in this world for the principle of creation and the principle of love. Just think of how many of us brothers and sisters are out there doing this together in each of our own environments, with the strengths and talents given to us at birth and through Our True Parents. Yes, it is just the beginning, but it is a good beginning.

I hope I did not bore you too much, I just felt like sharing my heart of love for you all.