When I was a little girl, I remember my mom telling us kids to be prepared for enormous changes in our lives. She would say that in 1960 the messiah will come and teach us the complete truth. He will explain the book of revelation, which my mom said, is the book of the seven seals. Everything will be revealed. The messiah will also help us to learn how to speak to God, like children respectfully speak to their parents, so prayer will not be necessary.

All this went straight to my heart and I lived with these messages and I took them very seriously, so it became a daily reminder for years in my life. Interestingly, my mom also said it to all of us - my brother and my two sisters - but only I remembered it clearly. I recall accusing Eve for all the unhappiness in the world. Actually until the very present day, I hold women responsible for everything. My basic belief and feeling was always, even as a young child, in this very beautiful true love with no evil in it. My mom mentioned it a lot, but since this beautiful dreamlike perfect, ideal love did not happen to her in which she so believed in, she would sometimes add, "maybe it is just an illusion." After I heard her saying so, I got very depressed for several days. Eventually I overcame and became every time stronger in my conviction that this great ideal love must exist.

My mom asked me to become a missionary and live and work for mankind, as if she knew, I might be able to solve the problem Eve created. Even my uncle (the brother of my mother who lectured religion at the University of Graz in Austria and was also responsible for the city of Leibniz as the pfarrer) said one time to me that I probably will get everybody out of trouble. That made me feel really special. After all I was only 8 years of age. At age 14 I developed a strong desire to leave home and find God somewhere out there. I also wished for a home in every country in the world.

At age 17 I left for Vorarlberg, a neighbor country to Switzerland. I also had so many dreams - great ones and difficult to interpret and understand dreams - which carried a huge responsibility. I had many, many different jobs and learned about many different religions. It sounds all exciting, but it was an extremely difficult life. I learned about life the very hard way.

The time eventually came when I felt that there was nothing any more to learn and I prepared myself mentally to die soon. That very same night I received a revelation that I had a big family and everyone was playing an instrument. It was like a huge orchestra, and the love I felt was so immense and heavenly, matching my ultimate desire for true love! It is hard to describe, it was so beautiful. I woke up energized and knew this love really exists and not just an illusion. I wished and cried for this all my life, and now I knew I didn't have to die . My mom talked about this love and said it never did happen to her, and this made me cry a lot.

After a long, tumultuous life I was shown a picture of an oriental man inside a red book. Immediately I recognized and resonated with his eyes. I felt this is the person like Jesus, the person my mom talked about when I was little who will teach us the truth completely. This person knows true love; this person is the Messiah. And this was the person not only I was looking for, but this was the person my mom was looking for. I did not have to make a decision or think whether it was true, it was totally clear to me. However I did have to make a decision, what to do about it. So I was bombarded with dreams and revelations that I have to move into a center of the Unification Church. I did not like the idea, but soon understood the necessity of it.

There are so many things to tell that I will need to write a book.

One thing is for sure, and that is all human being are personally responsible to study the Divine Principle of creation and identify themselves with their own personal relationship with God, our parent, and find their personal compass. This will lead to harmony and love and respect for all aspects in nature, animals, and our fellow human beings. War and evil will fast become a distant memory. Everyone who believes in Jesus - go and talk to him in your prayer and be consistent in your quest for truth.
