I sat at the very front of the room anxious and nervous to see Hyun Jin Nim again for the first time in a very long time. I wanted to see Hyun Jin Nim speak with my own eyes as close as possible and feel the warm spirit of the gathering so I came in early and sat in the very first row. So I didn't know what was going on in the rows behind me. I didn't know whether the seats behind me were full or empty. I didn't care who was talking behind me. I wasn't going to yield my seat today. The circulation of the air in the room wasn't working well and it was getting hot. That was the price I had to pay for sitting in the front of the room.

Finally Hyun Jin Nim started speaking. He started out quietly. And slowly began increasing the tempo. Sometimes strongly. Sometimes softly... I have heard Hyun Jin Nim speak many times years ago, but today he was leading the audience in a more refined and experienced way.

But the thing I could hear was the sound of Hyun Jin Nim's "han" [resentment] pouring out from him. In the past he would sometimes become enraged because of the weight of that han. But not today. Of course the han was there, but it was different.

As a person who lived next to Father in Hannam-dong for years and witnessed the life of Father whose life was drenched with han, perhaps I am extra sensitive to that feeling than others. There was a deep han within Hyun Jin Nim.

The thing is that I could see that he is overcoming the han and his heart was lighter, more relaxed. Maybe if nobody was there to see me I would have cried and wailed. Hyun Jin Nim overcoming this han.

I truly hope that Hyun Jin Nim can bring about the kind of results that will liberate God's han, True Father's han.
