The ROK-U.S. alliance is strong today and will be even stronger in the future. General Skip Sharp (U.S. Army ret), former commander of combined forces in Korea, will discuss the factors that put this alliance, forged in common cause for 70+ plus years, apart and above our country's other alliances. We will also examine elements that need to be strengthened if we are to meet evolving regional threats and the changing landscape of nuclear deterrence, space warfare and cyber, the fragile Japan-Korea-US triad and information operations.

Unique Strengths of the ROK-US Alliance

Webinar Tuesday, Oct 4, 2022 from 2 to 3 PM EDT

The ROK-U.S. alliance is strong today, and we will examine elements that need to be strengthened if we are to meet evolving threats. North Korea launched its third ballistic missile in anticipation of Vice President Harris' recent trip to South Korea and the DMZ. This could escalate quickly with North Korea conducting a seventh nuclear test. General Skip Sharp (U.S. Army ret), former commander of combined forces in Korea, will discuss the state of our alliance and our options for response.
