True Mother gives her address at the UN headquarters September 7, 1993.

True Mother delivered the speech "True Parents and the Completed Testament Age" at the United Nations on September 7, 1993.

This followed her delivery of the same speech at the U.S. Capitol on July 28 before representatives from 115 congressional offices and was the springboard to her world tour in which she delivered the same message at 25 rallies in Japan in September, on 40 Korean college campuses in October and in 40 nations during November and December.

Prior to her Capitol Hill and UN speeches, on April 10, 1993, the movement published "True Parents and the Completed Testament Age" in the newspapers of 160 nations. True Father delivered the "Completed Testament Age" proclamation in 12 U.S. cities during May 1993 and True Mother in 21 more during late May and June. At the UN event, 105 nations sent embassy and consulate representatives, including more than 60 UN ambassadors. His Excellency Stoyan Ganev, president of the UN General Assembly, introduced True Mother. She was the first Korean woman to speak in the United Nations.
